

For Demos, Republicans

Ohio's vote vital in last primaries

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An estimated 2.55 million Ohioans were expected to go to the polls today, expressing a presidential preference to determine who will represent the state in national nominating conventions.

Always important because of its size, the Ohio vote has become even more vital in 1976. Two Democratic contenders have called it a make-or-break primary, while the Republican incumbent is relying on an Ohio victory to offset delegate losses in California, which also holds its primary today as does New Jersey.

On the Democratic side, it's largely a three-way race, between former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter; Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

Carter has called the Ohio primary a final showdown with the stop-Carter politicians. Udall has said it is crucial because a big victory could assure Carter the nomination, while a loss could deny Carter the party's nod.

Carter has been considered the frontrunner. Udall has campaigned hard in Ohio, aiming most of his rhetoric directly at the Georgian. But Church, a latecomer to the campaign trail, was believed to be cutting into Udall votes instead of Carter votes.

At stake for Democrats are 152 delegates, 38 of which will be apportioned according to the statewide vote and 114 of which will be parceled out, four to seven at a time, to individual winners in each of the state's 23 congressional districts.

Besides the three major candidates, others will be on the ballot. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, both now inactive candidates, are on the statewide ballot, as is a favorite daughter slate pledged to state Treasurer Gertrude Donahey.

It was Ford against Ronald Reagan and Carter against three sets of Democratic opponents, for the biggest one-day delegate crop since the primary voting began 15 weeks ago.

All told, Democrats were selecting 540 national convention delegates, Republicans 331.

Ford entered the last set of primaries with 804 of the 1,130 delegates needed to win the Republican nomination. Reagan has 692 and there are 148 in the uncommitted column. Republicans will choose another 283 delegates in caucuses and state conventions, and that is where the competition will focus after today.

Carter is far ahead of the Democratic field, and bids today for delegates to move himself beyond the reach of the rivals who seek to stop him. He now has 909, with 1,505 needed for nomination. That is nearly three times his closest challenger, Rep. Morris K. Udall, who has 307.5. There are 393.5 uncommitted Democratic delegates, and 141 to be chosen after the primaries.

Today's balloting lines up this way:

California
Reagan, the former governor, is in his home territory, bidding for 167 delegates in a winnertake-all contest with the President. Ford casts himself as the underdog but adds: "I don't rule out the possibility that there could be a surprise."

One Ford aide said a victory in California would be a miracle.

The Republican campaign there escalated in the closing hours as Reagan responded bitterly to a Ford commercial suggesting that as President he could start a war. He called it divisive, low road campaigning.

California Democrats were choosing 280 delegates, but they have discarded the winner-take-all rule, so the home-state advantage of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. won't give him a sweep. Carter expects to cut into the California delegation, which will be apportioned on the basis of the popular vote in the state's 43 congressional districts. Udall, Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, former Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma and anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack also are entered.

The polls close at 11 p.m. EDT.

New Jersey
A nominally uncommitted slate, actually allied with Ford, is entered for the 67 Republican delegates. Would-be delegates who list themselves as supporting "former California governor" are competing for 40 delegate slots. Reagan expects no more than a handful of delegates in that one.

There are 108 Democratic delegates there, and Carter's major opposition is an uncommitted slate which includes supporters of Brown and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey. Church, Udall, Wallace, Jackson, Harris and Mrs. McCormack also have entries in the delegate competition.

Brown campaigned in New Jersey on election eve, and said it was the crucial primary. "This is where the Carter bandwagon finally runs off the track," he said.

Carter, Church and three other Democrats were listed on a purely advisory preferential primary ballot.

The polls close at 7:30 p.m. EDT.

Ford and Reagan argued at a distance over a campaign commercial broadcast by the President Ford Committee which concludes: "Gov. Reagan couldn't start a war. President Reagan could."

It is based on a comment Reagan made last Thursday in Sacramento, that he might consider sending a token U.S. force to Rhodesia if the government asked for help to preserve peace. He said later that he had made a mistake by giving that hypothetical answer to a hypothetical question.

Coffee Break . .

A YEAR has passed since the Fayette County Choral Society, Inc., held its first meeting on June 2, 1975, and a bicentennial concert planned by the society on Sunday, June 20 at the First Presbyterian Church will be the initial public performance of a second year.

Thanks to community generosity with time, facilities, financial patronage, and best of all, appreciation and understanding, the original option continues to be open for singers and audiences, so that Fayette County's musical riches in talented and accomplished performers and available major works by old masters and living composers can affect the local way of life.

The finance committee of Mrs. Norman Armbrust, chairman, Mrs. James Wagner, Mrs. Robert Van Dyke, Mrs. Truman Dunn and Coyt Stookey has renewed a fund drive. . . At present, expenses include weekly fees for a conductor and an accompanist, the cost of musical scores, and other incidentals. . . The only source of income are membership dues, free-will offerings at concerts and gifts of money from concerned patrons.

Persons and organizations who would like to be listed as patrons in the June 20 program may send contributions to Mrs. Armbrust, 6037 Snow Hill Road, or to any other committee member before Wednesday, June 16.

Thompson captures eighth Clarence Christman award

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

David Thompson, a two-sport star at Washington Senior High School and his class valedictorian, became the eighth recipient of the Clarence A. Christman Award Monday night at the Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club dinner meeting in the Terrace Lounge.

The award, named in honor of the late City Manager Clarence A. Christman Jr., a noted area sports enthusiast, was designed to single out the most outstanding athlete-scholar-leader in Fayette County.

Thompson was presented the award by last year's winner, Jeff Smithson, in the annual ceremony co-sponsored by The Record-Herald and the Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club.

The selection of Thompson was made last month by a standing seven-member committee. He was one of eight candidates nominated for the award by head coaches at Washington Senior and Miami Trace high schools. The committee grades each nominee on their athletic accomplishments, their scholastic standing and their leadership qualities.

Thompson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stackhouse, 515 W. Elm St., graduated atop his class with a 4.0 accumulative grade point average.

He was nominated for the award by Washington Senior High School Athletic Director Maurice Pfeifer, who coached Thompson this past fall on the Blue Lion football team.

Thompson earned five varsity letters, three in baseball and one in football, during his high school career and received all-league honors in both sports.

As a tight end on the Blue Lion football team, Thompson was selected to the Associated Press All-District team his senior year.

His junior year he starred in baseball with a .380 batting average and earned first team All-South Central Ohio League honors as an outfielder.

He was president of the senior class

and the National Honor Society chapter at Washington Senior High School. He was also a member of the Letterman's Club, the Hi-Y Club, the American Field Service student chapter and the high school student council.

Thompson has garnered many scholastic awards during his four years at Washington Senior High School. He has been a member of the general science scholarship team, the biology scholarship team, the English scholarship team and the social studies scholarship team. He was awarded the Washington C.H. Rotary Club's "outstanding student award" and the Washington C.H. Elks lodge "most valuable student" in the state award during his senior year.

He plans to continue his studies at the University of Cincinnati and he has won the Cincinnati Milacron Corp. Scholarship. He plans to study engineering.

He also participated in a pilot Big Brother program and the student bailliff program in Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Thompson joins last year's winner Smithson, Chuck Wilson 1974; Glenn Gifford, 1973; Bill Junk, 1972; Jeff Blake, 1971; Tom Gifford, 1970; and Don Bennett, 1969; as Christman Award winners.

Other outstanding county athletes placed in nomination by their coaches were Allan Conner, Miami Trace; Greg Cobb, Miami Trace; Ed DeWees, Washington C.H.; Dewey Foster, Washington C.H.; Bruce Ervin, Miami Trace; Randy Sparkman, Washington C.H.; and Scott Sefton, Washington C.H.

Coaches, who attended to formally place their candidates in nomination at the banquet, were Maurice Pfeifer and Rick Crooks from Washington Senior High School, and Richard Hill, Fred Zechman, Bill Beatty, Mike Henry and John Woolams, from Miami Trace High School.

At Wednesday's meeting

Heavy agenda set for City Council

Washington C.H. City Council will consider a heavy agenda of legislation Wednesday night.

Council will convene at 7:30 p.m. in the Fraternal Order of Police building, 470 N. North St.

Two items had been previously introduced. An ordinance amending the city code on driveway widths will be placed on its third and final reading. An ordinance amending the parking prohibitions to include restrictions on private property is slated for a second reading.

New legislation includes ordinances fixing the cost of street lighting with Dayton Power and Light Co., ordinances on sewer use and sewer tapping, and a previously tabled ordinance amending sections of the income tax bill relating to penalties and interest on unpaid taxes.

Also scheduled for presentation are emergency ordinances awarding a taxicab franchise and vacating portions of Campbell and Wilson streets.

The city manager is expected to address several topics including income tax bills for legal services, a public utilities rate increase request for the Washington C.H. area, sewer billing policies and a request of city acceptance of Commercial Avenue as a public roadway.

Despite favorable weather

County appears headed for light vote today

Despite mid-summer weather, Fayette County appears headed for a light voter turnout at today's primary election.

Of eight polling places contacted randomly, six election officials termed the 11 a.m. count either "light" or "very light." One official said the voting was average and another said voting at her location was "good."

Those who commented seemed disappointed by the scarcity of voters. Labeled by many national news broadcasters as the "Superbowl of Primaries," Tuesday's elections in Ohio, New Jersey and California were expected to yield a heavy voter response.

The last primaries of the year, they were heavily campaigned by the majority of candidates, especially in Ohio which may hold the key to the Republican presidential nomination.

Both President Gerald Ford and challenger Ronald Reagan are within striking distance of a first-round nomination for the Republican candidacy.

The Democratic frontrunner, Jimmy Carter, is also near a first-round nod from his party and campaigning for and against has been heated.

In addition, local Republicans have four candidates from which to choose for the county treasurer's post and a contest for the county engineer's office. In the latter race, the Republican choice will become the engineer next year because there is no Democratic candidate.

City voters are also casting ballots on three proposed property tax levies.

Even with these contests, several state candidacies in each party, and eight proposed Ohio constitutional amendments, voters seem disinterested.

Polling places contacted showed only about one-third their normal daily vote by 11 a.m. Five hours of the 13-and-one-half hours of voting time had passed, and the morning vote is usually heavier than the afternoon balloting.

Precinct 1-A, voting at the home of Mrs. Homer Garringer, 507 E. Market St., had cast only 28 ballots. The total vote for a primary election day is about 90.

Precinct 2-A, the American Legion Post, had 40 voters of an expected total of 125.

The Ohio National Guard Armory which houses Precinct 3-A had experienced a very light turnout, officials said.

The worst report came from Precinct 4-A at the First Baptist Church. Only 24 voters of an expected 125 for the day had cast ballots by 11 a.m. Jeffersonville Precinct A, Manara Precinct in Marion Township, and Union North at Eber School all reported light turnouts. Concord Township, voting at the Staunton Fire Department building had 70 voters. Normally 200 are expected by the end of the day.

Tax withholding broadened in bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new tax collection plan moving in Congress would require that income taxes be withheld from interest and dividend checks paid annually to more than 50 million American households.

The Internal Revenue Service says many Americans cheat on their taxes by not reporting such income. The agency estimated that such a withholding provision would add $2.4 billion a year in federal taxes.

The withholding plan could be a key to approval of a tax plan before the Senate Finance Committee. Chairman Russell Long, D-La., is pressing for approval in order to raise government revenues during 1977.

IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander told the committee Monday that such withholding is the best way to make certain that taxes on interest and dividends are paid.

The committee, under Senate orders to raise revenues by $2 billion, is criticized by liberals because it has voted to continue key tax breaks for wealthy investors — although at a reduced level — while agreeing to let part of a major cut in individual income taxes expire next June.

The Treasury Department estimates that as much as $8 billion worth of interest and dividends is escaping taxation because of cheating. Enforcement of withholding could raise collections by up to $2.4 billion in 1977, officials said.

That could allow Congress to accept Long's plan for continuing some tax shelters and still make permanent the entire package of individual tax cuts approved last year.

Atom safety vote in California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A proposal on today's primary election ballot in California will provide the first test of public reaction to the question of nuclear power safety. The outcome could have national impact on atomic energy as a source for electricity.

Proposition 13, the Nuclear Power Plants Initiative, is the first of 16 similar proposals pending nationwide.

No one is predicting the outcome, and at one point pollster Mervin Field declared the public was "incredibly confused" on the crucial issue of nuclear energy development versus guaranteed safety from radiation.

"It's the most important issue facing Californians in at least 50 years," said Assemblyman Charles Warren, a Democrat from Los Angeles, whose Assembly committee held hearings on the subject last year.

Colorado and Oregon have similar initiatives on their November ballots.

Proposition 15 asks voters to say "yes" or "no" to a safety plan so stringent it could shut down the state's three existing nuclear plants by 1987 and hamper progress on two plants now under construction.

The proposition would not, in itself, cause a shutdown or ban nuclear plants. But it would leave in the hands of the legislature a decision by 1979 on whether plants could operate safely and nuclear waste could be stored without risk.

If these requirements are not met, existing plants would have to reduce output to 60 per cent of licensed capacity in 1981 and shut down by 1987 unless the safety verdict changed.

Utility companies say this would force them to seek alternate sources of electricity, increasing expense and possible pollution.

The controversial proposal also would remove the utility companies' shield of a $600 million liability limit in the event of a nuclear disaster.

In months of emotional campaigning, utility companies have thrown millions into their effort to defeat the measure, which they say is unnecessary and threatens economic disaster.

"It's the people against the money," insisted David Personon, a San Francisco attorney who drafted Prop. 15 and saw it as a contest between powerful utility companies and radiation-threatened customers.

Proponents of the measure repeatedly raised the spectre of a "nuclear accident" at one of the nation's more than 50 nuclear reactor plants — a nightmarish vision of slow death for perhaps 30,000 Americans.

Opponents of the measure note there has never been such an accident and chances of one are a five-billion-to-one longshot.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. did not take a stand on the issue. Only days before the election, he signed into law three nuclear safety bills approved by the legislature.

The bills were seen as a milder alternative to Prop. 15 which might discourage some voters from approving the more extreme ballot measure. None of the three approved bills would affect the state's three existing plants or the two under construction.

OU campus quiet after disturbance

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — After a weekend of disturbances described as the worst in six years, Ohio University returned to normal Monday as students began taking their final exams.

Authorities said that students celebrating the end of classes and other persons confronted police twice during the weekend, leaving 20 persons with minor injuries and resulting in 35 arrests.

Bars were closed in downtown Athens Sunday as a precaution after two evenings of carousing by several hundred persons. Stores were looted and glass on store windows and on a police car and fire truck were broken.

Incidents began Saturday in an early morning confrontation between 100 persons and police. Police Chief Ted Jones said the celebration began when groups of students and nonstudent returned to a main street near the campus, where several taverns are located.

Jones said a larger crowd returned to the area Saturday night. He said nonlethal wooden bullets were fired into the crowd because bottles and bricks were being thrown at police officers.

The police chief said the incidents were the most serious at the university since students faced National Guardsmen in 1970.

Among the injured were 18 civilians treated for minor injuries and two police officers, cut or injured by debris.

"Such disorders, orderly and destructive conduct by a small mindless group is an affront to the community of Athens, to the University and its students," University President Charles Ping said in a statement Monday.

Home builders fight requirements

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's home builders are organizing to fight zoning and code requirements which they say are unnecessary and add 10 per cent or more to the already spiraling cost of a new house.

The builders say the added costs are part of the reason why the price-tag on housing is so high that many Americans cannot afford to buy a new home. Others say that land costs are more directly to blame.

Still others say the cost of financing over the past 10 years has added much more to the price of housing than have building costs; and these costs, responsible for a widening gap between average worker income and new home prices, have priced more and more of the population out of the market altogether.

The builders' answer to this problem recently has been the "no frill" house — an effort up to now largely unsuccessful, which is one reason for seeking reconsideration of regulations such as those requiring wide streets, outdoor electrical outlets and smoke detectors.

The median price of new homes sold in the United States during April was $48,600, an increase of $4,100 from April 1975. The 9.2 per cent jump compares to a 6.1 per cent jump in all consumer prices.

Zoning ordinances, building codes, environmental regulations and federal construction standards add to the cost of a new home, but there is disagreement about which items are among those the Florida Home Builders Association calls "nice, but not necessary."

In its listing, the Florida group finds 64 stipulations it considers unnecessary in local, state or federal laws.

"There are a lot of things we've had to add that provide a benefit. But in view of all the people we are putting out of the market, is it reasonable to have all these rules and regulations?" asks John Crosland, a North Carolina builder who heads the newly formed National Association of Home Builders panel coordinating the nationwide deregulation effort.

However, Robert W. Buskirk, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development regional director in Florida, says, "They are beating the wrong horse. The builders should approach the problem of land costs. They have not been innovative in trying to meet this situation."

The builders say land is not a commodity they produce and they thus have little control over it. They also say the increases in home prices come despite their best efforts to hold their own costs in check.

Michael Sumichrast, chief economist for the National Association of Home Builders, says that in 1970 a developed

Kissinger again warns Red nations

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The United States "maintains a military capacity to protect itself and to protect its friends" and will never accept a repetition of the Cuban-Soviet intervention in Angola, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has told the Western Hemisphere's foreign ministers.

Kissinger arrived from Bolivia on Monday afternoon and went immediately to a private session of the annual general assembly of the Organization of American States, which began last Friday.

The secretary of state said smaller nations who want to remain free need not worry about their future.

"We will never accept another Angola adventure," he told the foreign ministers, referring to the Cuban troops and Soviet arms that helped a Marxist Angolan faction defeat other Angolan factions that were aided by the United States, South Africa and Zaire.

"An expeditionary force intervened there in the civil war," said Kissinger. "This adventure we will not accept again. The United States does not have any national dispute with Cuba, but it does not accept that a large country, like Russia, can use regional troops while it talks about peaceful co-existence."

Kissinger said the nuclear powers have an obligation to "diminish the possibility of nuclear conflict." But he assured his listeners that the United States will never "conspire" with Communist nations against the liberty and national dignity of friendly countries.

He also said Washington will never enter into a "condominium" of power with Moscow to the disadvantage of other nations.

On hemispheric matters, Kissinger reaffirmed the Ford administration's commitment to a peaceful solution with Panama of the future of the Panama Canal. Earlier Monday, he told a news conference in Santa Cruz, Bolivia, that the administration would not be deterred from negotiating a new treaty because of political controversy at home.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civil rights advocates attempting a constitutional challenge to government practices which allegedly discriminate against minorities must prove those practices are motivated by racial bias, the Supreme Court says.

In approving a controversial police-recruitment test, the Court said Monday that it is not enough to show a government action has a discriminatory impact for a law or practice to be ruled unconstitutional. The justices ruled 7 to 2 to uphold the legality of the District of Columbia test, which blacks failed four times as often as whites. The court found no evidence of intentional racial bias in designing the tests.

"Disproportionate impact is not irrelevant, but it is not the sole touchstone of an invidious racial discrimination forbidden by the Constitution," Justice Byron White said for the court. He said it must also be proved that the tests had a "discriminatory racial purpose."

The ruling may have a significant impact on a key case which will be heard next term on the extent that predominantly white suburbs must open themselves to development of largely black low-income housing.

"For the first time, the law is clear that if you are going to charge a public official with racial discrimination you have got to somehow prove what was going on in his mind," said attorney Richard Sobol, who argued against the D.C. police test.

"It doesn't seem to me that's been the law in the past, and obviously it's very hard to do."

Civil rights attorneys said the ruling would have little impact on most employment discrimination cases, since a federal law prohibits job practices that have a discriminatory impact. But they said it could have a substantial affect in areas such as housing.

White said the court "disagreed" with 17 lower-court rulings which "rested on or expressed the view that proof of discriminatory racial purpose is unnecessary in making out an equal protection violation."

The ruling may have a significant impact on a key case which will be

Stocks move to upside

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices swung upward today in bargain hunting after the market's recent broad declines.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up about a point in the early going, and gained a slight edge on losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The session began 15 minutes after the normal 10 a.m. opening at the NYSE because of a fire drill.

Brokers said the upturn in prices was largely the result of internal market forces after the Dow slipped to a new spring low at the close Monday.

The average began the day some 53 points below its closing peak this year of 1,011.02 on April 21.

Today's early prices included American Air Filter, unchanged at 14 1/2; Springs Mills, down 1/4 at 12 1/2; and UV Industries, off 1/4 at 31 1/2.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 5.81 to a new 3 1/2-month low of 958.09.

Labor accord

signed at Antioch

WASHINGTON (AP) — Antioch Law

School here has signed what school officials say may be the first union contract between a U.S. law school and its faculty.

The agreement covers wages, hours and working conditions for both the faculty and staff of the four-year-old school.

Spokesmen for both the union and the school have expressed satisfaction with the one-year contract.

Other institutions of higher learning have signed collective bargaining agreements with faculty members, but it is believed this is the first time a law school has done so.

Questions on school spankings

"Spare the rod and spoil the child" is not a maxim much respected these days. There is a general feeling that caning boys - or girls, for that matter - who misbehave is not a civilized nor even a very effective disciplinary method.

Whether it is civilized or effective for a principal to whack a child with a wooden paddle while others hold him down is not, however, the sort of question the courts deal with. In legal terms, these considerations are more or less irrelevant. The questions posed for the courts - questions the Supreme Court has now agreed to deal with in a case originating in Dade County, Florida - have to do with constitutionality.

The question whether "severe" spankings as a form of discipline constitute "cruel and unusual punishment" within the meaning of the Eighth Amendment. The question whether failure to give the culprit notice of charges against him, and to give him a chance to be heard, violates due process. It is good to know that the "highest court," having once upheld "reasonable" corporal punishment in the schools, will now consider the more difficult questions.

THESE DAYS...By John Chamberlain

The need to define the word 'letter'

Government mail monopolies originated in the late Middle Ages as a means of keeping tabs on what the subjects of feudal monarchs were saying to each other. Even king-killers such as the English Puritans couldn't shake the idea: Oliver Cromwell, in 1657, described the postal monopoly as a necessary means of preventing "dangerous and wicked designs which have been and are daily contrived against the peace and welfare." In brief, the mail monopoly, was an instrument of censorship.

Since this is the background of the postal monopoly idea, it becomes more and more incomprehensible that our Founding Fathers, who had revolted against Old World tyrannies, could have ordained both the freedom of speech guarantee of the First Amendment and a Federal monopoly for mail-carrying. Someday a bright citizen is going to bring suit alleging it to be a violation of his civil liberties to be forced to send letters through a compulsory public authority.

On the face of things, it is an utter contradiction to say that a person has freedom of speech and then insist that only a licensed Federal officer can carry messages from one citizen to another.

Sen. James Buckley of New York, who has been supporting the idea of free competition in the mail-carrying business, might welcome a test in the courts if he can't get legislation to break the postal monopoly. It stands to reason (political reason) that we won't get anywhere in Congress with a bill to open up the business of mail-carrying to competition.

J. Kevin Murphy, the head of Purolator Services, Inc., which is the world's largest courier organization, can tell Sen. Buckley why he is fighting a losing battle. The postal service happens to be a labor monopoly as well as a letter-carrying monopoly. The Postal Union force of 730,000 constitutes one per cent of the working population of the United States. This, says Murphy, "can put the fear of God into politicians."

Murphy's arithmetic is good: two of the last four presidential elections were lost by less than 730,000 votes. The Postal Union members represent more than 1,600 voters in each of 435 congressional districts. In many elections congressional losses have been sustained by far less than this number. When the family members of Postal Union employees are included, the voting power of the average postal worker must be more than doubled.

The postal monopoly refers only to "letters." Murphy's own courier business, like that of the United Parcel Service, depends on an accurate definition of what constitutes a "letter." A letter is a message from one person to another.

The Purolator Services company maintains trucks and planes and utilizes commercial carriers to forward magnetic tapes, legal documents, catalogues, advertising literature, market information and intra-office communications between corporate branches on an overnight basis. This is legal. So, too, is the business of forwarding films for processing, pharmaceuticals, radioactive isotopes and parcels of all types. It is even legal to "mail" magazines by private courier, although the subsidy now provided for magazines (out of the profits of first-class mail) makes it uneconomical to do so in most circumstances.

But if the distinction between a "letter" and a non-letter is pretty clear, the postal unions are a bit greedy about extending the definition of a letter to include marginal items. In 1973, the Postal Service specifically recommended that the internal messages of an interstate business corporation should not be defined as "letters." But the recommendation was hastily dropped because of union pressure.

Postal union officials have called the private forwarding of intra-company memoranda "cream skimming." Actually, this sort of communication comprises only one per cent of all mail sent in the U.S.

If Congress won't pass a law opening the postal business to private competition, it owes it to the various courier companies to clarify the meaning of the word "letter." Is an income tax return sent to the government a "letter"? What about a driver's license application? Or a bank check? Or an examination paper with a grade marked on it? Or an insurance policy?

There are a lot of things left in the shadow. The National Association of Manufacturers and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce have importuned Congress to define the word "letter" so that private business can know what it can do without risking legal penalties because of differences in semantics.

Volunteers help count ballots

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — After the last votes are cast around 7:30 tonight when the primary election polls close, thousands of workers around Ohio will count the 2.55 million ballots.

At some 13,000 polling places in the 88 counties, workers will open boxes stuffed with ballots or pull apart machines that had levers pushed down all day as voters expressed their sentiments on issues and candidates.

Fred C. Lentz, staff attorney for the election division of the secretary of state's office, estimates that 140,000 persons, some volunteers, will count the ballots in the 24 hours after the polls close. That includes members of the county election boards, presiding judges, poll workers, punch card operators, telephone operators and messengers around the state.

"It's really not too tough a job, except on the Democratic delegate ballot," said James Marsh, assistant secretary of state who will remain in his office today and Wednesday until the unofficial vote is counted.

Newspapers, radio and television will report the vote tonight as it is counted from the secretary of state's office on the presidential and Supreme Court races and the fate of the eight statewide issues. The other races—for Congress, General Assembly and local contests—will be tabulated in each of the 88 counties.

Also, the three television networks and two major wire services will have their own vote-counting organization—News Election Service, a cooperative with reporters at the precinct level to compile the votes.

Here's what happens when the polls close, according to Lentz:

In polling places where paper ballots are used, the ballots are unfolded by two workers, always a counter and verifier.

In polling places with machines, the back of the voting booth is slid off and the number of votes cast for each candidate revealed to two workers, a counter and verifier.

In each case, two copies of the results are compiled—one is posted on the door of the polling place for use by the general public and the other is brought to the county election board by the presiding judge of the polling place.

At the county level, tabulators compile the vote to determine a countywide figure which in certain races is reported every 10 polling places to the secretary of state in Columbus who posts it for the general public. Those figures and the NES tabulation are used by broadcasters and newspapers in determining winners based on trends developed during the evening.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Piano player makes awful church music

DEAR ABBY: One of the reasons I used to love to go to church was the organ music. Well, our organist moved out of town, and now a piano player is playing the organ. It is piano player to listen to her.

She brags that she has never had an organ lesson in her life, and believe me, it is obvious.

She is such a pleasant and willing person that nobody wants to complain, but if they don't get rid of her and get an organist, I will quit coming to church, and so will several of my friends.

Our clergyman must be tone deaf. So what's the solution? This is a small town. No name, please.

CHURCHGOER
DEAR GOER: You and the others who share your view should call on the clergyman and suggest that he consider getting an organist or educate the piano player.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't put me down and call me a starry-eyed dreamer, but I have a terrific crush on my doctor. I am a happily married young woman with a perfectly good husband and two beautiful children. So why is this doctor on my mind all the time?

I told my husband about it and even asked him if maybe I should change doctors, and he said it wouldn't do any good—that I would probably develop a crush on the next one. And besides, he says, it's nothing unusual because nearly every woman is in love with her doctor. Is that true?

I am sure my doctor doesn't have a clue that I have this wild crush on him, and I know there's no chance of his becoming interested in me, but that doesn't suggest my feelings about him.

ANY SUGGESTIONS?
GOT A CRUSH
DEAR GOT: Not every woman has a crush on her doctor, but it's not unusual to mistake feelings of gratitude, admiration, respect and hero-worship for romantic love.

Analyze your feelings and recognize them for what they are before your next appointment, or your doctor won't be able to get an accurate history of your normal blood pressure, pulse and heartbeat.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps I am over-reacting, but I don't think so.

After 38 years of wonderful marriage, my husband passed away. Lately, and especially at Christmas, I received a large number of cards addressed to "Mrs. Agnes Smith." I even received some lovely stationery with "MRS. AGNES SMITH," printed on it.

It is like a knife cutting off the last tie with my late husband. Isn't it proper to be addressed as "Mrs. Harold Smith"? I realize that for business purposes, my legal name is "Agnes Smith," but socially, until and unless I remarry, I am "Mrs. Harold Smith," am I not?

Perhaps if you publish this, some of my friends will realize how deeply they have hurt me. Thank you.

MRS. HAROLD SMITH
DEAR MRS. SMITH: You are indeed Mrs. Harold Smith, and should be addressed as such socially.

TV Viewing

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Muir, who hosts a well-known, pun-filled literary quiz show called "My Word" in England, currently is visiting America and other talk shows in literary to discuss "my book."

Said book tends to stand out, if only because of its title: "An Irreverent and Thoroughly Incomplete Social History of Almost Everything."

It is a collection of famous, obscure and usually hostile quotations of famous and not-so-famous folks knocking such things as art, music and education. All their comments are preceded by Muir's wry, funny comments.

"I can't for the life of me remember why I started it," mused the 46-year-old author, a veteran radio-TV writer and performer in England.

"On second thought, I think I know why," he decided. "I'd been mucking about with 30-minute situation comedies for 25 years, and very successfully in England. Which means no money."

He said Dennis Norden, his writing partner and performing colleague during those 25 years, decided one day he wanted to write movies. And Muir didn't. Whereupon he spent five years writing his "Social History."

"I wanted to get nearer to my audience, if any, and I also wanted to write something that'd stand up," he explained. "If you write scripts for 25 years, they lie flat on the shelf, almost as if they were to creep off and commit suicide on the floor."

Muir, whose career includes a three-year stint as head of comedy at the British Broadcasting Corp., said he decided to do a book with the general theme of "anti," or funny and vitriolic fulminations against things.

Some of them we've seen in "Bartlett's Familiar Quotations." Others are a bit more obscure, like a tirade against jazz that appeared in June 53 years ago in the New Orleans Times-Picayune, of all places.

Where did Muir get the lesser-known outbursts?

"Well, I didn't want the book to be an anthology of other anthologies, which most of them are," he said. "Of course, some familiar stuff has to go in. But I got the other material from second-hand books on various things."

"In England, we have thousands of chaps whose hobby is book dealing and they work from garage. So I got on a few mailing lists, saw what was offered and got a collection of stuff on subjects I wanted."

The collection grew quite large. In fact, Muir said he wound up with enough material for 28 chapters. His first book contains but six.

"I'll do three more volumes if I live long enough," Muir said.

Ford gives goodies to Ohio

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — President Ford has pledged more jobs for Ohio and made a series of economic announcements designed to win him votes in today's primary election.

The camp of Republican challenger Ronald Reagan has criticized the President for similar tactics in earlier primary states including Florida and New Hampshire. During the campaign,

Ford has announced appointments, grants and the awarding of contracts in some of the states in which he stumped.

Ford visited eight cities in western Ohio Monday, beginning in Cincinnati and ending in Toledo in a final bid for support from voters.

He reaffirmed his commitment to the uranium enrichment plant in Portsmouth and said that Gov. James A. Rhodes' forecast that it would create 10,000 new jobs is a "good one."

"Just to show the firmness of the commitment," Ford said, "I signed a request a few days ago that the Congress appropriate $178,000,000 to go ahead with the design, the engineering and the site clearing for that project."

Beatles albums valuable

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — That old $3.95 Beatle album gathering dust in your record collection could be worth hundreds.

Even a 98-cent copy of "Please Please Me" could fetch $140, if the record is in mint condition with the "VJ" logo in black and "Beatles" misspelled on the label, says collector Tom Meenach.

Memorabilia merchants claim the British rock group is still big business, even though the Beatles haven't performed in public for 10 years.

"It's starting to turn into a full-time thing," said Mitchell McGeary, owner of a company specializing in old Beatle records. "As much stuff as I can get, I can sell. I started TTR (Ticket to Ride, Ltd.) a year ago and now I can't keep up."

The business has grossed $8,000

since October, he said.

"I get records from 30 countries," said the 23-year-old carpenter. "But sometimes the only way I can get rate stuff like this is to trade for it. Cash won't even talk sometimes."

"Most of the time it's the label or album cover that's worth the money," said McGeary. "The records themselves usually are worth only a few dollars."

One rural, three city blaze reports probed

A home on the Cook-Yankee town Road caught fire Monday, Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported. Washington C.H. firemen were summoned to three different fires Monday.

An electrical short circuit apparently caused a 4:25 p.m. fire in the Donald Hanawalt residence, 12103 Cook-Yankee town Road, Mount Sterling fire department officials reported.

Mount Sterling firemen were summoned to the home after a neighbor reported smoke coming from the structure. Jodi Hanawalt, 12, was in the process of taking a bath when the fire started. She succeeded in escaping from the burning home.

The fire was confined to a bedroom in the home, though extensive smoke damage was present throughout the structure, Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported.

Local resident retires from Wright-Patterson

DAYTON — A Washington C.H. man has retired from Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, following 22 years of federal service.

Marvin W. Crosswhite, 59, was employed as a supervisor of the 2750th mobile mail distribution unit at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base. During his federal career, Crosswhite received the gold zero defects award and letters of appreciation as well as other citations and commendations. He also served in the military during World War II.

Crosswhite and his wife, Elsie, reside at 1003 Willard St.

Two separate grass fires were apparently caused by a discarded cigarette, Washington C.H. firemen believed. A third fire was the result of children playing with matches, fire officials reported.

A hay field farmed by Roger Bonham, 3819 Creek Road, caught fire at 1:40 p.m. Monday, and was doused by firemen using brooms and water.

A brush fire took place at 2:27 p.m. Monday along U.S. 35-SE, near the Creek Road intersection. Firemen used water to extinguish the blaze.

A box car belonging to the Chessie System Railroad company was the scene of an 11:03 a.m. Monday fire. Apparently, some neighborhood children had set fire to some wood scraps located inside the box car, which was located in back of 620½ N. North Street. Firemen used water to extinguish the fire.

A Jamestown area woman has also retired from Wright-Patterson Air Force Base following 21 years of federal service.

Dorothy O. Breakfield, 50, worked as an accounts maintenance clerk with the 2750th accounts and finance branch at the Air Force base. A native of Washington C.H., Mrs. Breakfield is a 1943 graduate of Washington High School.

Mrs. Breakfield and her husband reside at 15956 U.S. 35-N, near Jamestown.

Cruiser bids accepted

The Fayette County Board of Commissioners has accepted two bids for new Sheriff's cruisers.

The commissioners accepted the bids submitted by Carroll Halliday, Inc., the only bidder. The total cost of the two vehicles is $10,813, and the county will receive $800 credit for a 1974 model Plymouth being traded.

Sheriff Don Thompson said the used cruiser has approximately 82,000 miles. The two new Ford cruisers are priced with special heavy-duty equipment and other additional items.

Bids for road improvement contracts were opened and verbally accepted Monday afternoon, but the formal acceptance letter has not yet been prepared.

The commissioners will view the Wildman ditch project at 11 a.m. Friday.

Next Monday they will view the Mount Eber ditch which was recently re-petitioned. Although the commissioners had previously approved

Flashbulb pop scares President

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — "It sounded like it might be ominous but it turned out just to be a lightbulb," President Ford said after he and his Secret Service detail were startled by a flashbulb burst.

Ford was leaving the Bowling Green University field house Monday after a campaign appearance when the flashbulb on a coed's camera apparently malfunctioned and exploded with a loud pop, sending fragments flying through the air.

The President, sunburned from a weekend outdoor campaigning, turned ashen as Secret Service agents grabbed him, spun him around and pushed him to the floor while other bodyguards rushed into the crowd.

Maryland adopted the first workmen's compensation law in 1902.

Arrests

SHERIFF

MONDAY — Herman R. Sharp Jr., 28, of Elizabeth, Ind., speeding.

POLICE

MONDAY — Bernice McGhee, 28, of 108½ W. Paint St., unlawful flight to avoid prosecution; Harry Benson, 69, of 217 East St., disorderly conduct by intoxication; Linda D. Robinette, 24, of Greenfield, change of course in traffic lanes.

Correction

The ages of two pedestrians injured in a Sunday accident in Washington C.H. were printed incorrectly in Monday's edition of the Record-Herald. A flying hubcap struck Rodney Howe, age 20 months, of 1026 Millwood Ave., and Carolyn Howe, 14, of the same address. They were both taken to Fayette County Memorial Hospital, treated and released.

Hays supporters ready defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorneys defending Rep. Wayne Hays against possible fraud charges are gathering evidence which they believe will show Elizabeth Ray did secretarial work for her $14,000 salary, according to a source close to Hays.

The lawyers hope to counter Miss Ray's allegations that she was on the House payroll only to serve as Hays' mistress with statements and documents showing that she was capable of typing and that she visited her office regularly, the associate said in an interview Monday.

"We'll never be able to prove she was a good secretary," one Hays associate conceded, "but we don't have to do that to beat a fraud rap."

Hays' attorneys hope to prove that Miss Ray possessed some secretarial skills, and that she showed up regularly to work and was given assignments as a secretary for a House subcommittee.

Two Hays' lawyers have been stalking the House corridors for 10 days interviewing prospective witnesses and gathering documentary material to use in defending Hays against Miss Ray's allegations that she was on the House payroll only to serve as Hays' mistress. Her charges sparked a federal grand jury investigation.

Sources said Hays' lawyers have statements from people who said Miss

Ray was given typing assignments. It was not known if the attorneys have details on the assignments or proof that they were performed.

Hays' defenders say Miss Ray visited her office regularly.

"We can prove she showed up," said one source, "That means the government would have to prove that she sat around polishing her fingernails all day."

Free grandstand show set for county's fair

Final preparations for activities for the annual Fayette County Fair were completed at the regular meeting of the Fayette County Agricultural Society (fair board) Monday night.

Board president Eddie Kirk announced that a free grandstand show, a new feature of the county fair schedule, will be held this year.

The opening ceremonies will begin at 7 p.m. Sunday, July 25. The 7 p.m. starting time is later than in past years, Kirk said.

The Preble Swingers, a group of 30 Eaton residents, will provide entertainment at the free grandstand show.

Other features discussed by fair board members at Monday night's meeting were the antique and classic car show and a horseshoe pitching contest scheduled for Sunday, July 25, and an old-fashioned picnic to be held Monday, July 26.

It was announced at the meeting that fair premium books are now available. Last year's exhibitors will be receiving copies in the mail, and others needing the books should contact George Finley, fair board secretary, at the Mahan Building.

Fair board members inspected the new tractor pull and demolition derby track which has been constructed on the infield of the fairgrounds race track. The project is nearing completion and will be ready for this year's fair.

Blackstone to retire as Ohio patrol chief

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Col. Frank R. Blackstone is retiring as superintendent of the Highway Patrol after only a year in the job.

Blackstone, 54, who will retire July 3, said he will leave according to his promise to step down by age 55, a precedent set by his predecessor, Robert Chiaramonte.

Before Chiaramonte left the post, the mandatory retirement age of 55 affected all officers except the superintendent.

The outgoing superintendent joined the patrol in 1945 as a trainee and was made patrolman three months later. As his 30-year career in state service ends, Blackstone said he has no future employment plans but does not plan to work inside state government. He leaves open the possibility of work in the private sector.

Highway Safety Director Donald D. Cook, who will carry out a search for Blackstone's successor, said in response Monday that the superintendent was well-respected by the force and had continued the patrol's tradition of excellence in that post.

State lawmakers renew battle

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State lawmakers plunge into a renewed battle of the budget Wednesday in what shapes up as the kickoff of a major struggle for control of the legislature in the November election.

The Senate and House return following a five-week recess that allowed members to campaign for today's primary, but the battle has been building behind the scenes. Major combatants were unopposed for re-nomination.

Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes, frustrated by an opposition legislature for the first time in more than nine years as chief executive, made it clear he intends to depict the Democratic leadership fiscally irresponsible.

House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, is equally adamant in his plan to show the Rhodes administration is maneuvering to force the legislature into espousing a tax increase.

Riffe said Rhodes is straining under a 1974 campaign pledge of no new or increased taxes but can't expect the legislature to get him off the hook.

"The governor has to submit a balanced budget (for the next biennium starting July 1, 1977). We'll wait to see his recommendations," he said.

The governor cited, among other things, a current crisis in Medicaid payments of about $40 million which will soar an estimated $80 million more in the next fiscal year.

"The Democratic majority," he said, "has put the State of Ohio into the worst welfare mess in our state's history."

He said Democrats have the options of joining him in spending cuts or imposing a legislative tax increase.

Rhodes plans to address a joint session of the legislature Thursday to outline what he called "vital issues" facing the state. He confirmed it will include Ohio's fiscal crisis and the need for new legislation to help the state attract and expand industry.

Other major matters also on tap this week, during a planned three-day session include a conference committee's revised proposal to give homeowners and industry a measure of relief on their future property tax bills.

Action could come on another major bill to require financial reports from lobbyists who seek to influence legislation on a regular basis. It has been passed by the Senate. However, a House panel weakened some of its provisions and it subsequently was left pending in the rules committee of that chamber. Senate-House differences

Jury studies kidnaping, slaying

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — Jurors were to resume deliberations today in the trial of William Nabozny, who is charged with the murder of Detroit banker James Crawford.

The jury took the case late Monday after hearing final arguments from defense and prosecution attorneys but considered their verdict less than two hours before recessing for the night.

Nabozny, 38, of Dearborn, Mich., is being tried in Licking County Common Pleas Court on a charge of aggravated murder in the stabbing death of Crawford, 25.

Crawford, assistant branch manager for the National Bank of Detroit, was abducted while on his way to work Dec. 4. His body was found on a rural Licking County road near here Dec. 10.

Before final arguments Monday prosecutor Neil Laughlin called two

Detroit women to testify as rebuttal witnesses. Their testimony was an attempt by Laughlin to discredit Nabozny's claim he was in Detroit during the time Crawford was thought to have been held captive near here.

In earlier testimony, Chester Wysocki, also of Dearborn, admitted he took part in the kidnaping and identified John Garsides of Columbus, Ohio, and Nabozny as his cohorts.

Planned NBA college draft hurts Olympic cage team

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's National Basketball Association draft had a great effect on last week's United States Olympic basketball trials.

Robert Parish of Centenary and Leon Douglas of Alabama, both certain first-round choices in the NBA draft, pulled out of the trials because they feared damaging their chances at pro contracts. They felt an injury or bad showing during the trials or Games could have been devastating.

But two other sure first-round picks, All Americans Scott May of Indiana and Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame, tried out and made the Olympic team with no concern about the draft.

"I'm not here to impress the pros," said May, college basketball's player of the year. "My value won't change. What does the Olympics decide compared to what I've done for the last four years?"

Dantley, who did not withdraw his name from the hardship draft list, agreed.

"I know a lot of guys dropped out because they didn't want to get hurt," he said. "But you don't play the same here as you do during the season. There's much more of a team concept."

Others expected to go early in the draft but missing from the Olympic trials were UCLA teammates Richard Washington and Marques Johnson, both hardship cases, and guard John Lucas of Maryland.

The hardship players had until 5 p.m. EDT Monday to withdraw their names from draft consideration. Among those who pulled back and decided to remain in college were Bo Ellis of Marquette, Bernard King of Tennessee, Tree Rollins of Clemson, and Rickey Green of Michigan.

Houston owned the first choice in today's draft, acquiring it from Atlanta Monday along with center Dwight Jones in exchange for center Joe Meriwether, guard Gus Bailey and the Rockets' first-round pick.

Money an object in ABA-NBA cage linkup

NEW YORK (AP) — Owners of four American Basketball Association franchises say they are willing to pay the price, steep though it may be, to join the National Basketball Association and end the often heated, nine-year-old rivalry of the two pro leagues.

Heads of the ABA's Denver, New York, Indiana and San Antonio franchises have decided that if they get the opportunity, they will agree to an initiation fee of $4.5 million apiece to join the NBA.

But that $4.5 million is just the beginning. High ABA sources estimate that it could cost a franchise anywhere from $6.5 million to $8 million to get into the NBA. And for the New York Nets, who would almost certainly have to pay a territorial indemnity to the NBA's New York Knicks, it could run as high as $12 million.

For the owners of the two other ABA franchises, Kentucky and St. Louis, those figures were simply too high.

Those two clubs have agreed to bow out of the picture on one condition — that the remaining four ABA teams buy out their franchises. It was not clear whether the other clubs had agreed to do so at their meeting in Chicago which ended Monday, although if that were the only thing holding up a merger they undoubtedly would.

Such action would remove one major stumbling block to consolidation of the rival leagues. Though no formal offer was made, the NBA's expansion committee, at an interleague meeting May 28, laid the groundwork for future negotiation by suggesting that the senior circuit might be willing to accept four ABA teams at $4.5 million per.

The immediate problem was that the ABA had six clubs — what to do about the other two?

That has apparently been resolved by the cost factor.

The reason Kentucky — and the owners of the St. Louis club, which had been slated to be moved to Utah — declined is money.

Bengals unload Henson, Klaban, Cousino

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals traded linebacker Brad Cousino, runningback Champ Henson and rookie placekicker Tom Klaban, from Ohio State, to the Chicago Bears for undisclosed draft choices.

Bengals Assistant General Manager Mike Brown said it was simply a matter of "trying to put these players in a place where they have a better opportunity than they have here."

Klaban, a Cincinnati who was OSU's regular placekicker for three years, apparently lost out to rookie placekicker Chris Bahr during the recent rookie camp. Cincinnati also has veteran kicker Dave Green.

Cousino, 5-foot-11, 210 pounds made it with Cincinnati as a free agent but was assigned mainly to kicking teams.

Henson, a fourth round draft choice last season was cut by the Minnesota Vikings and picked up by the Bengals just before the start of last season. The former Ohio State fullback carried the ball 11 times for 38 yards.

Golfer Rick Acton was a southpaw pitcher for the University of Washington. His baseball career ended when he tore tendons in his elbow against UCLA.

RECORDS

McGarrigle Sisters Sing Their Own

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures

The album, "Kate and Anna McGarrigle," was released in January and the reviews have been drifting in ever since — one rave after another. For instance, Stereo Review magazine chose it as an album of the month in May.

The Canadian McGarrigle Sisters' sister Jane, who now lives in San Francisco, played organ on the album on "Heart Like a Wheel." The mention of "Heart Like a Wheel" places Kate and Anna McGarrigle better — if one hasn't heard their Warner Brothers record — because they're probably known by more persons for the songs they've written than for their performances.

They have sung on the folk circuit in Canada and the United States, separately and together.

Kate says, "In the five years I've been in the States, as a resident alien, we've spent about two months a year singing together. The last two or three years we've been doing folk festivals in the summer-time and the odd coffee house date. We would pick up different personnel, try to teach songs to friends, very informal." With the release of the record, she says, it's probably going to get more formal, with putting a band together and going on an organized tour.

The folk circuit still exists, Kate says. "You run into people at folk festivals. They can all give you a list of 10 or 15 places to play in an area. You don't really need an elaborate sound system. The rooms are never very big.

"If you open for a huge band in a big hall, the audience may not like you. But in clubs, there's word of mouth. People say they saw so and so last night and the music was real good. Normally, in a folk club, by the third night, probably everybody there will like you."

They sang the songs they wrote themselves. Though they don't write songs together, they say they often think of similar song ideas and often write in keys both can sing, because their voices aren't very different in pitch. But both admit to having written songs in a key

Kate says, "Once you set up a relationship with a person who has sung one of your songs, it's easier. They'll come back to you after that and ask if you have anything new for them. You don't have to go banging down doors and trying to get a singer to listen to your stuff.

"And there aren't that many male interpreters. I guess most of the men singing now write their own songs."

Anna adds that their songs, obviously, are written from a woman's point of view. And there's definitely a camaraderie among male song writers-singers and the same among female. "They do hang out together. It's almost like when you were in school."

The one of the songs they've written which has sold the most copies is Miss Ronstadt's record of "Heart Like a Wheel." Anna says, "I'm still living with the same person I more or less wrote the song to. I think in a way the song means you can't go back when a relationship is over. But I managed to go back. But it is much different, and better, than it was pre-song." Anna lives in Canada.

The McGarrigle sisters — it's an Irish name — grew up in the village of St. Sauveur des Monts, Quebec. Kate says, "We didn't have any brothers at home and my father wanted me to be an engineer. We were brought up to be independent. I went to college to be an engineer — six girls and 300 guys in first year. You never had to battle or make a political point. You were treated very much as an equal. In the music business, if there is a market for female voices, it's a job where a guy couldn't replace us. It's just as easy for us to run our publishing company ourselves as to have a man do it."

"If I think a situation requires a hard-nosed attitude, I'll assume that role. If I think it requires gentler handling, I'll turn it over to Anna. I think Anna is just as tough as me and I'm just as vulnerable as she is. But in most situations, one of us can handle it better. We kind of know when 'to let the other one do it.'"

Pieces About People Living On The 'Edges'

EDGES. By Ray Raphael. Knopf, 225 Pages. $7.95.

Ray Raphael has a great love for the open, uncrowded land and for the people who inhabit it. But that kind of land is shrinking in size daily and Raphael is deeply concerned by this. Not only by the reduction in open space but also by the gradual fading out of the lifestyles of the people who live in the open spaces.

These Raphael calls "the people of the Edges" — those on the periphery of modern society who are not yet enveloped by the Metropolis. They hold one foot in the present, but the other foot is elsewhere; perhaps it is in the past — or somewhere outside of time."

The various pieces that make up "Edges" deal primarily with these people: what their lives were like before "civilization" drew so near and what they are like now that it is so close. They deal both with the older and younger generations: the old who were there from the beginning and the newly arrived, disillusioned young who came to the Edges in hope of escaping that which was slowly advancing upon their hoped-for retreat.

Raphael writes very well and the stories he relates are told pithily. While he sometimes likes to pause and linger verbally as he describes some back-country delight, he can be forgiven this since his descriptions usually are well written and what he has to say is quite to the point.

There are times, however, when Raphael does get carried away by it all and what he has to say appears more idealistic than realistic, but this happens rarely and does little to impede the progress of his over-all narrative.

The bidding:

Opening lead — six of hearts.

It is sometimes necessary to make an unusual play in order to accomplish a particular purpose.

Let's assume you're in three notrump and West leads a heart. It seems perfectly normal to win East's nine with the queen and lead the jack of diamonds, hoping to find West with the queen and so assure the contract. In the actual deal, if you led the jack and finessed, you would soon find yourself going down one after East took the queen and returned a heart.

But the fact is that if West has the queen of diamonds you can make the contract by playing the hand in an entirely different way — and at the same time probably make the contract if East has the queen of diamonds.

You have to make a hair-raising play to accomplish your purpose, but it is nonetheless a very sound play. All you have to do is lead a club to the queen at trick two and return a low diamond from dummy!

It is true that in the actual deal East can defeat you by playing the queen of diamonds instead of the deuce, but how many players do you know who would make that play? East would almost surely follow low if he held the Q-x, Q-x-x or Q-x-x-x of diamonds, and after he played low in these cases you would have the contract all wrapped up.

Of course, it's been drilled into all of us that, with the diamond combination shown in this deal, one should always initiate the suit by leading towards the K-10-x-x. But all so-called inflexible rules in bridge should be willingly violated when the appropriate occasion arises, and there is no doubt that this deal is one of those occasions.

Contributions investigated

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. says the Securities and Exchange Commission is considering possible enforcement proceedings over the company's domestic political contributions and what Firestone calls small "questionable or improper" payments made in foreign countries over a 31-month period.

The company said its own investigation of the matter was continuing, and a committee was considering "the extent to which the company should seek reimbursement from its employees for amounts expended by them."

Richard A. Riley, Firestone president and chief executive officer, said in a report to the SEC and to shareholders that the investigation supervised by an audit committee of three directors had uncovered about $330,000 in domestic political contributions and an unspecified amount of foreign payments made from November 1970 through May 1973.

Recipients and countries involved weren't identified.

Painter Howard Chondler Christy was born in 1873 in Morgan County, Ohio.

Seems like every four years some people feel the compulsion to get actively involved in politics — that is to the extent that they get in a tizzy working for a presidential candidate who, in most cases, they had never heard of a few months before. It also seems that the condition corrects itself by mid-November and the patient shows no signs of having been a wild-eyed political activist just a few weeks before.

There was a guy named George Something-or-other who said, a few years ago, that there wasn't a dime's worth of difference among the candidates. How true! Yet otherwise intelligent people get all worked up over the presidential race when the real action is going on in the Congressional races throughout the country. And many people who have strong feelings for or against certain congressmen haven't the foggiest idea of how the man voted on any issue. They don't even know how to find out. Now there's where we can help you. We have, in our shop, an index of the voting record of each congressman, house and senate, that you can buy for 30c. Are you curious about how Wayne Hays voted on certain issues? Do you agree with Mr. Harsha's vote? From my viewpoint Mr. Harsha has been voting right only about 20 per cent of the time recently. Perhaps you should check how he's been voting to spend your money. For only 30c you can come in and get the latest voting index which lists all congressmen and how they voted on key issues. Many people come in and get the latest index as soon as a new one comes out.

A few years ago one of the most brilliant reporters in the country was covering the congressional scene in Washington, and I always followed his reports with interest since I respect him as a man of character and integrity. That man is Reed A. Benson. Reed's dad is Ezra Taft Benson, Secretary of Agriculture in the Eisenhower cabinet. Reed Benson will be the speaker at the Middle School Auditorium, Tuesday, June 15. The subject is one of the most important factors in our American way of life: Family Unity. May I urge you to go see the film and hear Mr. Benson's message.

East sunny for 2nd day

By The Associated Press

A large high pressure zone over much of the East kept cloudiness to a minimum today. Elsewhere there were scattered showers and thundershowers.

There was rain in southern Florida, southeast and northwest Texas, New Mexico, southeast Colorado, northern Minnesota and upper Michigan and in the Pacific Northwest into northern Nevada and Montana.

Unseasonably warm weather continued in Utah as temperatures in the 50s and 60s were predicted for the nation, except for some in the 70s in Florida and Arizona and a few in the 40s from the northern Rocky Mountain region through the Pacific Northwest.

Sunny skies with temperatures in the 80s were expected for the primary elections in New Jersey and Ohio. In California, the election was to be held under mostly sunny skies. There was a chance of rain in the northern Sierra Nevada mountains.

For Demos, Republicans

Ohio's vote vital in last primaries

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An estimated 2.55 million Ohioans were expected to go to the polls today, expressing a presidential preference to determine who will represent the state in national nominating conventions.

Always important because of its size, the Ohio vote has become even more vital in 1976. Two Democratic contenders have called it a make-or-break primary, while the Republican incumbent is relying on an Ohio victory to offset delegate losses in California, which also holds its primary today as does New Jersey.

On the Democratic side, it's largely a three-way race, between former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter; Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

Carter has called the Ohio primary a final showdown with the stop-Carter politicians. Udall has said it is crucial because a big victory could assure Carter the nomination, while a loss could deny Carter the party's nod.

Carter has been considered the frontrunner. Udall has campaigned hard in Ohio, aiming most of his rhetoric directly at the Georgian. But Church, a latecomer to the campaign trail, was believed to be cutting into Udall votes instead of Carter votes.

At stake for Democrats are 152 delegates, 38 of which will be apportioned according to the statewide vote and 114 of which will be parceled out, four to seven at a time, to individual winners in each of the state's 23 congressional districts.

Besides the three major candidates, others will be on the ballot. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, both now inactive candidates, are on the statewide ballot, as is a favorite daughter slate pledged to state Treasurer Gertrude Donahey.

It was Ford against Ronald Reagan and Carter against three sets of Democratic opponents, for the biggest one-day delegate crop since the primary voting began 15 weeks ago.

All told, Democrats were selecting 540 national convention delegates, Republicans 331.

Ford entered the last set of primaries with 804 of the 1,130 delegates needed to win the Republican nomination. Reagan has 692 and there are 148 in the uncommitted column. Republicans will choose another 283 delegates in caucuses and state conventions, and that is where the competition will focus after today.

Carter is far ahead of the Democratic field, and bids today for delegates to move himself beyond the reach of the rivals who seek to stop him. He now has 909, with 1,505 needed for nomination. That is nearly three times his closest challenger, Rep. Morris K. Udall, who has 307.5. There are 393.5 uncommitted Democratic delegates, and 141 to be chosen after the primaries.

Today's balloting lines up this way: California

Reagan, the former governor, is in his home territory, bidding for 167 delegates in a winnertake-all contest with the President. Ford casts himself as the underdog but adds: "I don't rule out the possibility that there could be a surprise."

One Ford aide said a victory in California would be a miracle.

The Republican campaign there escalated in the closing hours as Reagan responded bitterly to a Ford commercial suggesting that as President he could start a war. He called it divisive, low road campaigning.

California Democrats were choosing 280 delegates, but they have discarded the winner-takeall rule, so the home-state advantage of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. won't give him a sweep. Carter expects to cut into the California delegation, which will be apportioned on the basis of the popular vote in the state's 43 congressional districts. Udall, Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, former Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma and anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack also are entered. The polls close at 11 p.m. EDT.

New Jersey

A nominally uncommitted slate, actually allied with Ford, is entered for the 67 Republican delegates. Would-be delegates who list themselves as supporting "former California governor" are competing for 40 delegate slots. Reagan expects no more than a handful of delegates in that one.

There are 108 Democratic delegates there, and Carter's major opposition is an uncommitted slate which includes supporters of Brown and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey. Church, Udall, Wallace, Jackson, Harris and Mrs. McCormack also have entries in the delegate competition.

Brown campaigned in New Jersey on election eve, and said it was the crucial primary. "This is where the Carter bandwagon finally runs off the track," he said.

Carter, Church and three other Democrats were listed on a purely advisory preferential primary ballot.

The polls close at 7:30 p.m. EDT. Ford and Reagan argued at a distance over a campaign commercial broadcast by the President Ford Committee which concludes: "Gov. Reagan couldn't start a war. President Reagan could."

It is based on a comment Reagan made last Thursday in Sacramento, that he might consider sending a token U.S. force to Rhodesia if the government asked for help to preserve peace. He said later that he had made a mistake by giving that hypothetical answer to a hypothetical question.

Coffee Break...

A YEAR has passed since the Fayette County Choral Society, Inc., held its first meeting on June 2, 1975, and a bicentennial concert planned by the society on Sunday, June 20 at the First Presbyterian Church will be the initial public performance of a second year.

Thanks to community generosity with time, facilities, financial patronage, and best of all, appreciation and understanding, the original option continues to be open for singers and audiences, so that Fayette County's musical riches in talented and accomplished performers and available major works by old masters and living composers can affect the local way of life.

The finance committee of Mrs. Norman Armbrust, chairman, Mrs. James Wagner, Mrs. Robert Van Dyke, Mrs. Truman Dunn and Coyt Stookey has renewed a fund drive. At present, expenses include weekly fees for a conductor and an accompanist, the cost of musical scores, and other incidentals. The only source of income are membership dues, free-will offerings at concerts and gifts of money from concerned patrons.

Persons and organizations who would like to be listed as patrons in the June 20 program may send contributions to Mrs. Armbrust, 6037 Snow Hill Road, or to any other committee member before Wednesday, June 16.

County's athlete-scholar-leader

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

David Thompson, a two-sport star at Washington Senior High School and his class valedictorian, became the eighth recipient of the Clarence A. Christman Award Monday night at the Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club dinner meeting in the Terrace Lounge.

The award, named in honor of the late City Manager Clarence A. Christman Jr., a noted area sports enthusiast, was designed to single out the most outstanding athlete-scholar-leader in Fayette County.

Thompson was presented the award by last year's winner, Jeff Smithson, in the annual ceremony co-sponsored by The Record-Herald and the Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club.

The selection of Thompson was made last month by a standing seven-member committee. He was one of eight candidates nominated for the award by head coaches at Washington Senior and Miami Trace high schools. The committee grades each nominee on their athletic accomplishments, their scholastic standing and their leadership qualities.

Thompson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stackhouse, 515 W. Elm St., graduated atop his class with a 4.0 accumulative grade point average.

He was nominated for the award by Washington Senior High School Athletic Director Maurice Pfeifer, who coached Thompson this past fall on the Blue Lion football team.

Thompson earned five varsity letters, three in baseball and one in football, during his high school career and received all-league honors in both sports.

As a tight end on the Blue Lion football team, Thompson was selected to the Associated Press All-District team his senior year.

His junior year he starred in baseball with a .380 batting average and earned first team All-South Central Ohio League honors as an outfielder.

He was president of the senior class

and the National Honor Society chapter at Washington Senior High School. He was also a member of the Letterman's Club, the Hi-Y Club, the American Field Service student chapter and the high school student council.

Thompson has garnered many scholastic awards during his four years at Washington Senior High School. He has been a member of the general science scholarship team, the biology scholarship team, the English scholarship team and the social studies scholarship team. He was awarded the Washington C.H. Rotary Club's "outstanding student award" and the Washington C.H. Elks lodge "most valuable student" in the state award during his senior year.

He plans to continue his studies at the University of Cincinnati and he has won the Cincinnati Milacron Corp. Scholarship. He plans to study engineering.

He also participated in a pilot Big Brother program and the student bailliff program in Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Thompson joins last year's winner Smithson, Chuck Wilson 1974; Glenn Gifford, 1973; Bill Junk, 1972; Jeff Blake, 1971; Tom Gifford, 1970; and Don Bennett, 1969; as Christman Award winners.

Other outstanding county athletes placed in nomination by their coaches were Allan Conner, Miami Trace; Greg Cobb, Miami Trace; Ed DeWees, Washington C.H.; Dewey Foster, Washington C.H.; Bruce Ervin, Miami Trace; Randy Sparkman, Washington C.H.; and Scott Sefton, Washington C.H.

Coaches, who attended to formally place their candidates in nomination at the banquet, were Maurice Pfeifer and Rick Crooks from Washington Senior High School, and Richard Hill, Fred Zechman, Bill Beatty, Mike Henry and John Woolams, from Miami Trace High School.

At Wednesday's meeting

Heavy agenda set for City Council

Washington C.H. City Council will consider a heavy agenda of legislation Wednesday night.

Council will convene at 7:30 p.m. in the Fraternal Order of Police building, 470 N. North St.

Two items had been previously introduced. An ordinance amending the city code on driveway widths will be placed on its third and final reading. An ordinance amending the parking prohibitions to include restrictions on private property is slated for a second reading.

New legislation includes ordinances fixing the cost of street lighting with Dayton Power and Light Co., or finances on sewer use and sewer tapping, and a previously tabled ordinance amending sections of the income tax bill relating to penalties and interest on unpaid taxes.

Also scheduled for presentation are emergency ordinances awarding a taxicab franchise and vacating portions of Campbell and Wilson streets.

The city manager is expected to address several topics including income tax bills for legal services, a public utilities rate increase request for the Washington C.H. area, sewer billing policies and a request of city acceptance of Commercial Avenue as a public roadway.

Atom safety vote in California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A proposal on today's primary election ballot in California will provide the first test of public reaction to the question of nuclear power safety. The outcome could have national impact on atomic energy as a source for electricity.

Proposition 13, the Nuclear Power Plants Initiative, is the first of 16 similar proposals pending nationwide. No one is predicting the outcome, and at one point pollster Mervin Field declared the public was "incredibly confused" on the crucial issue of nuclear energy development versus guaranteed safety from radiation.

"It's the most important issue facing Californians in at least 50 years," said Assemblyman Charles Warren, a Democrat from Los Angeles, whose Assembly committee held hearings on the subject last year.

Colorado and Oregon have similar initiatives on their November ballots. Proposition 15 asks voters to say "yes" or "no" to a safety plan so stringent it could shut down the state's three existing nuclear plants by 1987 and hamper progress on two plants now under construction.

The proposition would not, in itself, cause a shutdown or ban nuclear plants. But it would leave in the hands of the legislature a decision by 1979 on whether plants could operate safely and nuclear waste could be stored without risk.

If these requirements are not met, existing plants would have to reduce output to 60 per cent of licensed capacity in 1981 and shut down by 1987 unless the safety verdict changed.

Utility companies say this would force them to seek alternate sources of electricity, increasing expense and possible pollution.

The controversial proposal also would remove the utility companies' shield of a $560 million liability limit in the event of a nuclear disaster.

In months of emotional campaigning, utility companies have thrown millions into their effort to defeat the measure, which they say is unnecessary and threatens economic disaster.

"It's the people against the money," insisted David Personen, a San Francisco attorney who drafted Prop. 15 and saw it as a contest between powerful utility companies and radiation-threatened customers.

Proponents of the measure repeatedly raised the spectre of a "nuclear accident" at one of the nation's more than 50 nuclear reactor plants — a nightmarish vision of slow death for perhaps 30,000 Americans.

Opponents of the measure note there has never been such an accident and chances of one are a five-billion-to-one longshot.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. did not take a stand on the issue. Only days before the election, he signed into law three nuclear safety bills approved by the legislature.

The bills were seen as a milder alternative to Prop. 15 which might discourage some voters from approving the more extreme ballot measure. None of the three approved bills would affect the state's three existing plants or the two under construction.

Despite favorable weather

County appears headed for light vote today

Despite mid-summer weather, Fayette County appears headed for a light voter turnout at today's primary election.

Of eight polling places contacted randomly, six election officials termed the 11 a.m. count either "light" or "very light." One official said the voting was average and another said voting at her location was "good."

Those who commented seemed disappointed by the scarcity of voters. Labelled by many national news broadcasters as the "Superbowl of Primaries," Tuesday's elections in Ohio, New Jersey and California were expected to yield a heavy voter response.

The last primaries of the year, they were heavily campaigned by the majority of candidates, especially in Ohio which may hold the key to the Republican presidential nomination.

Both President Gerald Ford and challenger Ronald Reagan are within striking distance of a first-round nomination for the Republican candidacy.

The Democratic frontrunner, Jimmy Carter, is also near a first-round nod from his party and campaigning for and against has been heated.

In addition, local Republicans have four candidates from which to choose for the county treasurer's post and a contest for the county engineer's office. In the latter race, the Republican choice will become the engineer next year because there is no Democratic candidate.

City voters are also casting ballots on three proposed property tax levies.

Even with these contests, several state candidacies in each party, and eight proposed Ohio constitutional amendments, voters seem disinterested.

Polling places contacted showed only about one-third their normal daily vote by 11 a.m. Five hours of the 13-and-one-half hours of voting time had passed, and the morning vote is usually heavier than the afternoon balloting.

Precinct 1-A, voting at the home of Mrs. Homer Garringer, 507 E. Market St., had cast only 28 ballots. The total vote for a primary election day is about 90.

Precinct 2-A, the American Legion Post, had 40 voters of an expected total of 125.

The Ohio National Guard Armory which houses Precinct 3-A had experienced a very light turnout, officials said.

The worst report came from Precinct 4-A at the First Baptist Church. Only 24 voters of an expected 125 for the day had cast ballots by 11 a.m.

Jeffersonville Precinct A, Manara Precinct in Marion Township, and Union North at Eber School all reported light turnouts. Concord Township, voting at the Staunton Fire Department building had 70 voters. Normally 200 are expected by the end of the day.

Tax withholding broadened in bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new tax collection plan moving in Congress would require that income taxes be withheld from interest and dividend checks paid annually to more than 50 million American households.

The Internal Revenue Service says many Americans cheat on their taxes by not reporting such income. The agency estimated that such a withholding provision would add $2.4 billion a year in federal taxes.

The withholding plan could be a key to approval of a tax plan before the Senate Finance Committee. Chairman Russell Long, D-La., is pressing for approval in order to raise government revenues during 1977.

IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander told the committee Monday that such withholding is the best way to make certain that taxes on interest and dividends are paid.

The committee, under Senate orders to raise revenues by $2 billion, is criticized by liberals because it has voted to continue key tax breaks for wealthy investors — although at a reduced level — while agreeing to let part of a major cut in individual income taxes expire next June.

The Treasury Department estimates that as much as $8 billion worth of interest and dividends is escaping taxation because of cheating. Enactment of withholding could raise collections by up to $2.4 billion in 1977, officials said.

That could allow Congress to accept Long's plan for continuing some tax shelters and still make permanent the entire package of individual tax cuts approved last year.

Questions on school spankings

"Spare the rod and spoil the child" is not a maxim much respected these days. There is a general feeling that caning boys - or girls, for that matter - who misbehave is not a civilized nor even a very effective disciplinary method.

Whether it is civilized or effective for a principal to whack a child with a wooden paddle while others hold him down is not, however, the sort of question the courts deal with. In legal terms, these considerations are more or less irrelevant. The questions posed for the courts - questions the Supreme Court has now agreed to deal with in a case originating in Dade County, Florida - have to do with constitutionality.

The question whether "severe" spankings as a form of discipline constitute "cruel and unusual punishment" within the meaning of the Eighth Amendment. The question whether failure to give the culprit notice of charges against him, and to give him a chance to be heard, violates due process. It is good to know that the highest court, having once upheld "reasonable" corporal punishment in the schools, will now consider the more difficult questions.

THESE DAYS...By John Chamberlain

The need to define the word 'letter'

Government mail monopolies originated in the late Middle Ages as a means of keeping tabs on what the subjects of feudal monarchs were saying to each other. Even king-killers such as the English Puritans couldn't shake the idea: Oliver Cromwell, in 1657, described the postal monopoly as a necessary means of preventing "dangerous and wicked designs which have been and are daily contrived against the peace and welfare." In brief, the mail monopoly, was an instrument of censorship.

Since this is the background of the postal monopoly idea, it becomes more and more incomprehensible that our Founding Fathers, who had revolted against Old World tyrannies, could have ordained both the freedom of speech guarantee of the First Amendment and a Federal monopoly for mail-carrying. Someday a bright citizen is going to bring suit alleging it to be a violation of his civil liberties to be forced to send letters through a compulsory public authority.

On the face of things, it is an utter contradiction to say that a person has freedom of speech and then insist that only a licensed Federal officer can carry messages from one citizen to another.

Sen. James Buckley of New York, who has been supporting the idea of free competition in the mail-carrying business, might welcome a test in the courts if he can't get legislation to break the postal monopoly. It stands to reason (political reason) that we won't get anywhere in Congress with a bill to open up the business of mail-carrying to competition.

J. Kevin Murphy, the head of Purolator Services, Inc., which is the world's largest courier organization, can tell Sen. Buckley why he is fighting a losing battle. The postal service happens to be a labor monopoly as well as a letter-carrying monopoly. The Postal Union force of 730,000 constitutes one per cent of the working population of the United States. This, says Murphy, "can put the fear of God into politicians."

Murphy's arithmetic is good: two of the last four presidential elections were lost by less than 730,000 votes. The Postal Union members represent more than 1,600 voters in each of 435 congressional districts. In many elections congressional losses have been sustained by far less than this number. When the family members of Postal Union employees are included, the voting power of the average postal worker must be more than doubled.

The postal monopoly refers only to "letters." Murphy's own courier business, like that of the United Parcel Service, depends on an accurate definition of what constitutes a "letter." A letter is a message from one person to another.

The Purolator Services company maintains trucks and planes and utilizes commercial carriers to forward magnetic tapes, legal documents, catalogues, advertising literature, market information and intra-office communications between corporate branches on an overnight basis. This is legal. So, too, is the business of forwarding films for processing, pharmaceuticals, radioactive isotopes and parcels of all types. It is even legal to "mail" magazines by private courier, although the subsidy now provided for magazines (out of the profits of first-class mail) makes it uneconomical to do so in most circumstances.

But if the distinction between a "letter" and a non-letter is pretty clear, the postal unions are a bit greedy about extending the definition of a letter to include marginal items. In 1973, the Postal Service specifically recommended that the internal messages of an interstate business corporation should not be defined as "letters." But the recommendation was hastily dropped because of union pressure.

Postal union officials have called the private forwarding of intra-company memoranda "cream skimming." Actually, this sort of communication comprises only one per cent of all mail sent in the U.S.

If Congress won't pass a law opening the postal business to private competition, it owes it to the various courier companies to clarify the meaning of the word "letter." Is an income tax return sent to the government a "letter"? What about a driver's license application? Or a bank check? Or an examination paper with a grade marked on it? Or an insurance policy?

There are a lot of things left in the shadow. The National Association of Manufacturers and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce have importuned Congress to define the word "letter" so that private business can know what it can do without risking legal penalties because of differences in semantics.

Volunteers help count ballots

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — After the last votes are cast around 7:30 tonight when the primary election polls close, thousands of workers around Ohio will count the 2.55 million ballots.

At some 13,000 polling places in the 88 counties, workers will open boxes stuffed with ballots or pull apart machines that had levers pushed down all day as voters expressed their sentiments on issues and candidates.

Fred C. Lentz, staff attorney for the election division of the secretary of state's office, estimates that 140,000 persons, some volunteers, will count the ballots in the 24 hours after the polls close. That includes members of the county election boards, presiding judges, poll workers, punch key operators, telephone operators and messengers around the state.

"It's really not too tough a job, except on the Democratic delegate ballot," said James Marsh, assistant secretary of state who will remain in his office today and Wednesday until the unofficial vote is counted.

Newspapers, radio and television will report the vote tonight as it is counted from the secretary of state's office on the presidential and Supreme Court races and the fate of the eight statewide issues. The other races—for Congress, General Assembly and local contests—will be tabulated in each of the 88 counties.

Also, the three television networks and two major wire services will have their own vote-counting organization—News Election Service, a cooperative with reporters at the precinct level to compile the votes.

Here's what happens when the polls close, according to Lentz:

In polling places where paper ballots are used, the ballots are unfolded by two workers and tabulated by two workers, always a counter and verifier.

In polling places with machines, the back of the voting booth is slid off and the number of votes cast for each candidate revealed to two workers, a counter and verifier.

In each case, two copies of the results are compiled—one is posted on the door of the polling place for use by the general public and the other is brought to the county election board by the presiding judge of the polling place.

At the county level, tabulators compile the vote to determine a countywide figure which in certain races is reported every 10 polling places to the secretary of state in Columbus who posts it for the general public. Those figures and the NES tabulation are used by broadcasters and newspapers in determining winners based on trends developed during the evening.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Piano player makes awful church music

DEAR ABBY: One of the reasons I used to love to go to church was the organ music. Well, our organist moved out of town, and now a piano player is playing the organ. It is punishment to listen to her.

She brags that she has never had an organ lesson in her life, and believe me, it is obvious.

She is such a pleasant and willing person that nobody wants to complain, but if they don't get rid of her and get an organist, I will quit coming to church, and so will several of my friends.

Our clergyman must be tone deaf. So what's the solution? This is a small town. No name, please.

CHURCHGOER

DEAR GOER: You and the others who share your view should call on the clergyman and suggest that he consider getting an organist or educate the piano player.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't put me down and call me a starry-eyed dreamer, but I have a terrific crush on my doctor. I am a happily married young woman with a perfectly good husband and two beautiful children. So why is this doctor on my mind all the time?

I told my husband about it and even asked him if maybe I should change doctors, and he said it wouldn't do any good—that I would probably develop a crush on the next one. And besides, he says, it's nothing unusual because nearly every woman is in love with her doctor. Is that true?

I am sure my doctor doesn't have a clue that I have this wild crush on him, and I know there's no chance of his becoming interested in me, but that doesn't change my feelings about him.

Any suggestions?

GOT A CRUSH
DEAR GOT: Not every woman has a crush on her doctor, but it's not unusual to mistake feelings of gratitude, admiration, respect and hero-worship for romantic love.

Analyze your feelings and recognize them for what they are before your next appointment, or your doctor won't be able to get an accurate history of your normal blood pressure, pulse and heartbeat.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps I am over-reacting, but I don't think so.

After 38 years of wonderful marriage, my husband passed away. Lately, and especially at Christmas, I received a large number of cards addressed to "Mrs. Agnes Smith." I even received some lovely stationery with "MRS. AGNES SMITH," printed on it.

It is like a knife cutting off the last tie with my late husband. Isn't it proper to be addressed as "Mrs. Harold Smith"? I realize that for business purposes, my legal name is "Agnes Smith," but socially, until and unless I remarry, I am "Mrs. Harold Smith," am I not?

Perhaps if you publish this, some of my friends will realize how deeply they have hurt me. Thank you.

MRS. HAROLD SMITH

DEAR MRS. SMITH: You are indeed Mrs. Harold Smith, and should be addressed as such socially.

TV Viewing

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Muir, who hosts a well-known, pun-filled literary quiz show called "My Word" in England, currently is visiting literary and other talk shows in America to discuss "my book."
Said book tends to stand out, if only because of its title: "An Irreverent and Thoroughly Incomplete Social History of Almost Everything."
It is a collection of famous, obscure and usually hostile quotations of famous and not-so-famous folks knocking such things as art, music and education. All their comments are preceded by Muir's wry, funny comments.
"I can't for the life of me remember why I started it," mused the 46-year-old author, a veteran radio-TV writer and performer in England.
"On second thought, I think I know why," he decided. "I'd been mucking about with 30-minute situation comedies for 25 years, and very successfully in England. Which means no money."
He said Dennis Norden, his writing partner and performing colleague during those 25 years, decided one day he wanted to write movies. And Muir didn't. Whereupon he spent five years writing his "Social History."
"I wanted to get nearer to my audience, if any, and I also wanted to write something that'd stand up," he explained. "If you write scripts for 25 years, they lie flat on the shelf, almost as if they were to creep off and commit suicide on the floor."

Muir, whose career includes a three-year stint as head of comedy at the British Broadcasting Corp., said he decided to do a book with the general theme of "anti," or funny and vitriolic fulminations against things.
Some of them we've seen in "Bartlett's Familiar Quotations." Others are a bit more obscure, like a tirade against jazz that appeared in June 53 years ago in the New Orleans Times-Picayune, of all places.
Where did Muir get the lesser-known outbursts?
"Well, I didn't want the book to be an anthology of other anthologies, which most of them are," he said. "Of course, some familiar stuff has to go in. But I got the other material from second-hand books on various things."
"In England, we have thousands of chaps whose hobby is book dealing and they work from garage. So I got on a few mailing lists, saw what was offered and got a collection of stuff on subjects I wanted."
The collection grew quite large. In fact, Muir said he wound up with enough material for 28 chapters. His first book contains but six.
"I'll do three more volumes if I live long enough," Muir said.

Ford gives goodies to Ohio

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — President Ford has pledged more jobs for Ohio and made a series of economic announcements designed to win him votes in today's primary election.
The camp of Republican challenger Ronald Reagan has criticized the President for similar tactics in earlier primary states including Florida and New Hampshire. During the campaign,

Ford has announced appointments, grants and the awarding of contracts in some of the states in which he stumped.
Ford visited eight cities in western Ohio Monday, beginning in Cincinnati and ending in Toledo in a final bid for support from voters.
He reaffirmed his commitment to the uranium enrichment plant in Portsmouth and said that Gov. James A. Rhodes' forecast that it would create 10,000 new jobs is a "good one."
"Just to show the firmness of the commitment," Ford said, "I signed a request a few days ago that the Congress appropriate $178,000,000 to go ahead with the design, the engineering and the site clearing for that project."

Beatles albums valuable

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — That old $3.95 Beatle album gathering dust in your record collection could be worth hundreds.

Even a 98-cent copy of "Please Please Me" could fetch $140, if the record is in mint condition with the "VJ" logo in black and "Beatles" misspelled on the label, says collector Tom Meenach.

Memorabilia merchants claim the British rock group is still big business, even though the Beatles haven't performed in public for 10 years.

"It's starting to turn into a full-time thing," said Mitchell McGeary, owner of a company specializing in old Beatle records. "As much stuff as I can get, I can sell. I started TTR (Ticket to Ride, Ltd.) a year ago and now I can't keep up."

The business has grossed $8,000

since October, he said.
"I get records from 30 countries," said the 23-year-old carpenter. "But sometimes the only way I can get rate stuff like this is to trade for it. Cash won't even talk sometimes."
"Most of the time it's the label or album cover that's worth the money," said McGeary. "The records themselves usually are worth only a few dollars."

One rural, three city blaze reports probed

A home on the Cook-Yankee town Road caught fire Monday, Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported. Washington C.H. firemen were summoned to three different fires Monday.

An electrical short circuit apparently caused a 4:25 p.m. fire in the Donald Hanawalt residence, 12103 Cook-Yankee town Road, Mount Sterling fire department officials reported.

Mount Sterling firemen were summoned to the home after a neighbor reported smoke coming from the structure. Jodi Hanawalt, 12, was in the process of taking a bath when the fire started. She succeeded in escaping from the burning home.

The fire was confined to a bedroom in the home, though extensive smoke damage was present throughout the structure, Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported.

Two separate grass fires were apparently caused by a discarded cigarette, Washington C.H. firemen believed. A third fire was the result of children playing with matches, fire officials reported.

A hay field farmed by Roger Bonham, 3819 Creek Road, caught fire at 1:40 p.m. Monday, and was doused by firemen using brooms and water.

A brush fire took place at 2:27 p.m. Monday along U.S. 35-SE, near the Creek Road intersection. Firemen used water to extinguish the blaze.

A box car belonging to the Chessie System Railroad company was the scene of an 11:03 a.m. Monday fire. Apparently, some neighborhood children had set fire to some wood scraps located inside the box car, which was located in back of 620½ N. North Street. Firemen used water to extinguish the fire.

Cruiser bids accepted

The Fayette County Board of Commissioners has accepted two bids for new Sheriff's cruisers.

The commissioners accepted the bids submitted by Carroll Halliday, Inc., the only bidder. The total cost of the two vehicles is $10,813, and the county will receive $800 credit for a 1974 model Plymouth being traded.

Sheriff Don Thompson said the used cruiser has approximately 82,000 miles.

The two new Ford cruisers are priced with special heavy-duty equipment and other additional items.

Bids for road improvement contracts were opened and verbally accepted Monday afternoon, but the formal acceptance letter has not yet been prepared.

The commissioners will view the Wildman ditch project at 11 a.m. Friday.

Next Monday they will view the Mount Eber ditch which was recently re-petitioned. Although the commissioners had previously approved work on the Mount Eber ditch, deficiencies in the county engineer's report prevented suitable bonding and the commissioners rescinded their approval.

Tourniquet 80 feet long

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. researcher says an 80-foot-long tourniquet developed for Saturday's emergency operation on Dixie, the Miami Zoo's popular elephant, will do the job, but it will take at least two men to make it work.

Goodyear said Monday that researcher Roger Payne developed the tourniquet after the company got an urgent request from a Miami, Fla., orthopedic surgeon, Dr. Patrick Barry, who is to direct Saturday's operation on Dixie's right foot.

Dr. Barry says the bone fusion operation being attempted on Dixie is a first for an elephant and is being tried because "there's no other way she can survive."

If Dixie, suffering from an infection that has destroyed two bones in her foot, can't be cured, she is to be put to sleep.

Payne tried out his tourniquet a few days ago on a Cleveland Metroparks Zoo elephant to make sure it worked.

Correction

The ages of two pedestrians injured in a Sunday accident in Washington C.H. were printed incorrectly in Monday's edition of the Record-Herald. Hays supporters ready defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorneys defending Rep. Wayne Hays against possible fraud charges are gathering evidence which they believe will show Elizabeth Ray did secretarial work for her $14,000 salary, according to a source close to Hays.

The lawyers hope to counter Miss Ray's allegations that she was on the House payroll only to serve as Hays' mistress with statements and documents showing that she was capable of typing and that she visited her office regularly, the associate said in an interview Monday.

"We'll never be able to prove she was a good secretary" one Hays associate conceded, "but we don't have to do that to beat a fraud rap."

Hays' attorneys hope to prove that Miss Ray possessed some secretarial skills, and that she showed up regularly to work and was given assignments as a secretary for a House subcommittee.

Two Hays' lawyers have been stalking the House corridors for 10 days interviewing prospective witnesses and gathering documentary material to use in defending Hays against Miss Ray's allegations that she was on the House payroll only to serve as Hays' mistress. Her charges sparked a federal grand jury investigation.

Sources said Hays' lawyers have statements from people who said Miss

Ray was given typing assignments. It was not known if the attorneys have details on the assignments or proof that they were performed.

Hays' defenders say Miss Ray visited her office regularly.

"We can prove she showed up," said one source, "That means the government would have to prove that she sat around polishing her fingernails all day."

Flashbulb pop scares President

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — "It sounded like it might be ominous but it turned out just to be a lightbulb," President Ford said after he and his Secret Service detail were startled by a flashbulb burst.

Ford was leaving the Bowling Green University field house Monday after a campaign appearance when the flashbulb on a coed's camera apparently malfunctioned and exploded with a loud pop, sending fragments flying through the air.

The President, sunburned from a weekend outdoor campaigning, turned ashen as Secret Service agents grabbed him, spun him around and pushed him to the floor while other bodyguards rushed into the crowd.

Free grandstand show set for county's fair

Final preparations for activities for the annual Fayette County Fair were completed at the regular meeting of the Fayette County Agricultural Society (fair board) Monday night.

Board president Eddie Kirk announced that a free grandstand show, a new feature of the county fair schedule, will be held this year.

The opening ceremonies will begin at 7 p.m. Sunday, July 25. The 7 p.m. starting time is later than in past years, Kirk said.

The Preble Swingers, a group of 30 Eaton residents, will provide entertainment at the free grandstand show.

Other features discussed by fair board members at Monday night's meeting were the antique and classic car show and a horseshoe pitching contest scheduled for Sunday, July 25, and an old-fashioned picnic to be held Monday, July 26.

It was announced at the meeting that fair premium books are now available. Last year's exhibitors will be receiving copies in the mail, and others needing the books should contact George Finley, fair board secretary, at the Mahan Building.

Fair board members inspected the new tractor pull and demolition derby track which has been constructed on the infield of the fairgrounds race track. The project is nearing completion and will be ready for this year's fair.

Blackstone to retire as Ohio patrol chief

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Col. Frank R. Blackstone is retiring as superintendent of the Highway Patrol after only a year in the job.

Blackstone, 54, who will retire July 3, said he will leave according to his promise to step down by age 55, a precedent set by his predecessor, Robert Chiaramonte. Before Chiaramonte left the post, the mandatory retirement age of 55 affected all officers except the superintendent.

The outgoing superintendent joined the patrol in 1945 as a trainee and was made patrolman three months later. As his 30-year career in state service ends, Blackstone said he has no future employment plans but does not plan to work inside state government. He leaves open the possibility of work in the private sector.

Highway Safety Director Donald D. Cook, who will carry out a search for Blackstone's successor, said in response Monday that the superintendent was well-respected by the force and had continued the patrol's tradition of excellence in that post.

Jury studies kidnaping, slaying

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — Jurors were to resume deliberations today in the trial of William Nabozny, who is charged with the murder of Detroit banker James Crawford.

The jury took the case late Monday after hearing final arguments from defense and prosecution attorneys but considered their verdict less than two hours before recessing for the night. Nabozny, 38, of Dearborn, Mich., is being tried in Licking County Common Pleas Court on a charge of aggravated murder in the stabbing death of Crawford, 25.

Crawford, assistant branch manager for the National Bank of Detroit, was abducted while on his way to work Dec. 4. His body was found on a rural Licking County road near here Dec. 10. Before final arguments Monday prosecutor Neil Laughlin called two

Detroit women to testify as rebuttal witnesses. Their testimony was an attempt by Laughlin to discredit Nabozny's claim he was in Detroit during the time Crawford is thought to have been held captive near here.

In earlier testimony, Chester Wysocki, also of Dearborn, admitted he took part in the kidnaping and identified John Garsides of Columbus, Ohio, and Nabozny as his cohorts.

State lawmakers renew battle

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State lawmakers plunge into a renewed battle of the budget Wednesday in what shapes up as the kickoff of a major struggle for control of the legislature in the November election.

The Senate and House return following a five-week recess that allowed members to campaign for today's primary, but the battle has been building behind the scenes. Major combatants were unopposed for re-nomination.

Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes, frustrated by an opposition legislature for the first time in more than nine years as chief executive, made it clear he intends to depict the Democratic leadership fiscally irresponsible.

House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, is equally adamant in his plan to show the Rhodes administration is maneuvering to force the legislature into espousing a tax increase.

Riffe said Rhodes is straining under a 1974 campaign pledge of no new or increased taxes but can't expect the legislature to get him off the hook. "The governor has to submit a balanced budget (for the next biennium starting July 1, 1977). We'll wait to see his recommendations," he said.

The governor cited, among other things, a current crisis in Medicaid payments of about $40 million which will soar an estimated $80 million more in the next fiscal year.

"The Democratic majority," he said, "has put the State of Ohio into the worst welfare mess in our state's history." He said Democrats have the options of joining him in spending cuts or imposing a legislative tax increase.

Rhodes plans to address a joint session of the legislature Thursday to outline what he called "vital issues" facing the state. He confirmed it will include Ohio's fiscal crisis and the need for new legislation to help the state attract and expand industry.

Other major matters also on tap this week, during a planned three-day session include a conference committee's revised proposal to give homeowners and industry a measure of relief on their future property tax bills.

Action could come on another major bill to require financial reports from lobbyists who seek to influence legislation on a regular basis. It has been passed by the Senate. However, a House panel weakened some of its provisions and it subsequently was left pending in the rules committee of that chamber. Senate-House differences probably would send it to a conference committee, making passage this week difficult.

Leaders say the deliberations could continue into Saturday. The extra day would be needed if Republicans refuse, as expected, to go along with rules suspensions needed for speedy action on a $150 million supplemental appropriations measure which is at the heart of the current money controversy.

Homerun derby at Pittsburgh

Zisk's poke nudges Cincy

By The Associated Press
The Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds put on a home run hitting contest before a regional television audience Monday night and the early reviews were mixed.
The Pirates came out on top 5-4, so the 16,001 fans at Three Rivers Stadium loved it. So did Richie Zisk because his pinch homer in the eighth, the seventh solo home run of the night, was the decisive blow.

"It looked like a driving range," said Zisk. "It was spectacular, an exciting game."
Pirate starter Bruce Kison enjoyed some of it.

"It was really fun when we were doing it to them," said Kison. "But it wasn't so much fun when they reversed it on me."
And Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson didn't like it at all.
"It was dull," grumbled Anderson.

"They're all dull when you lose."
Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia trimmed Los Angeles 8-6, San Diego dumped the New York Mets 5-1 and St. Louis edged Houston 7-6.
Pittsburgh didn't get a hit Monday night until the fifth inning and Cincinnati didn't get one until the sixth. The Pirates stole a run in the sixth when Frank Taveras singled, stole second and came all the way home on throwing errors by Reds' catcher Bill Plummer and center fielder Cesar Geronimo.

Then balls started jumping into the seats. Joe Morgan ended Kison's no-hitter with a leadoff homer in the seventh. The Pirates countered on roundtrippers by Al Oliver, Willie Stargell and Bill Robinson off Jack Billingham in their half of the seventh to go ahead 4-1.

Not to be outdone, Cincinnati struck back in the eighth to tie it 4-4. Morgan clouted his second homer of the night, Pete Rose hit one and the Reds picked up another run when Tony Perez scored from first base as Pittsburgh right fielder Dave Parker misplayed George Foster's single.

Then Zisk settled matters with his drive off Reds' reliever Will McEnaney in the eighth. The seven home runs tied the major league record for most solo homers in a nine-inning game.

Phillies 8, Dodgers 6
Larry Bowa's tie-breaking single in the sixth off reliever Charlie Hough, 7-1, helped the Phils win their 16th road game in 20 tries. Greg Luzinski and Dick Allen clubbed two-run homer off Rick Rhoden in the first inning but the Dodgers came back in their half of the first on Ron Cey's grand slam homer off Ron Reed.

Padres 5, Mets 1
Dave Winfield's three-run homer, his ninth of the season, and Alan Foster's four-hit pitching carried San Diego to the third straight victory. It was Foster's first win since last June. Craig Swan, 2-6, took the loss.

Cardinals 7, Astros 6
St. Louis battered Houston knuckleballer Joe Niekro for five runs in the first inning and held on behind a clutch relief performance by Al Hrabosky for the victory. Singles by Lou Brock, Willie Crawford and Mike Tyson, a double by Hector Cruz and an error by Niekro accounted for the Cards' outburst. Cliff Johnson hit a two-run homer for Houston.

All-American Herron off to national event

ALBUQUERQUE N.M. —Rob Herron will begin play in the NCAA University Division National Golf Tournament in New Mexico Wednesday after qualifying with a second-place finish in the NCAA Division III tournament two weeks ago.
Herron led his Ashland College golf team to a second place in the National College Division tourney at Wittenburg College and his 302, 72-hole total earned him first-team All-American honors.

Herron, who got his golfing start at the Washington Country Club course, was an honorable mention selection for All-American honors last year when he helped lead Ashland to a fourth place finish in the college division tourney.

This year's runner-up finish to Cal State-Stanislaus was Ashland College's best showing ever in the national golfing event.

Herron started slow in the tourney with back to back 77's. On the third day, he moved up to tenth in the medalist race with a 73.

Herron was allowed to tee off early on the final day of the tournament so he could catch a plane to the British Amateur Open in Scotland. Since Ashland was in contention for the tourney title, Herron's team was to tee off late in the day.

It took a special ruling from the tourney committee to allow the early tee off and it almost cost Herron an invitation to the university national tourney.

Herron finished off the 72-hole event with a two-over par 74 moving him and Ashland into second place. He tied for second with Roger Loesch from the College of Wooster. Dan Lysle of the Cal State team won medalist honors.

The university division tourney invites the top two golfers in division III to their annual event, and Herron and Loesch were to playoff the second-place finish to earn a berth at the New Mexico tournament.

Herron however was on his way to the British Amateur Open and was unable to play Loesch for the invitation.

Upon Herron's return to the United States, the university national officials made an exception. With the help of a petition from the Division III Coaches Committee and his newly acquired All-American status, Herron was cordially invited to the event along with Loesch and Lysle.

Herron left Sunday for the tournament and was to have played several practice rounds before the tourney's start on Wednesday. The top university division golf teams will be on hand for the tournament along with many outstanding individual collegiate golfers.

Herron played well in Scotland, but was eliminated in the first round of the prestigious amateur event on the Old Course at St. Andrews. He shot a one-under-par 71 while his opponent in the match-play event shot a 72. Herron still lost the round, one up, and dropped from the tourney.

Kansas City Scouts likely to fold up

MONTREAL (AP) — While National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell held onto the thinnest thread of hope for the Kansas City Scouts, there was every indication that the tottering 2-year-old franchise would be folded today by the league's Board of Governors.

Kansas City was not represented Monday at either the session of the rules committee which produced some stringent penalties against fighting, or at the meeting of the league's finance committee, which met twice to prepare a suggestion for the board which meets here today.

Car shine wins softball tourney

Car Shine Car Wash breezed through the winners bracket of the Colonial Stair Softball tournament at Eyman Park over the weekend.

Car Shine topped Dave's Body Shop, the winner of the losers' bracket, to secure the first-place trophy. The Hillsboro Merchants took third in the 13-team tourney.

G.K. Harris of Car Shine won the home run trophy and Rick Bartuff was awarded the most hits trophy.

First Christian scored five runs in the top of the seventh to edge First Baptist, 6-5, in a season opening Fayette County Church League contest.

Chuck Snyder hit a home run for the winners and Carl Elberfeld went three for three at the plate.

Blue-chip ready for major leagues

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the fastest ways to burst the bubble of a blue-chip professional baseball prospect is to send him directly to the major leagues. At least, that's what a brief trip through the record books seems to show.

The Houston Astros, who lead off the 12th annual summer free agent draft today, were expected to select Floyd Bannister, a hard-throwing left-hander with an 18-1 record this season for Arizona State University.

The Astros say their philosophy is not to allow a hot prospect to bypass the minor leagues and jump directly to a major league roster, contending that the move could damage a young man's confidence and career.

Since the free agent draft was instituted in 1965, six players have been immediately fitted for a big league uniform. None has seemed to profit from the experience.

One of those players, pitcher Eddie Bane, was whisked from Arizona State to the Minnesota Twins. The sudden promotion went against the wishes of Jim Brock, his college coach.

"I never thought he should go right up," said Brock of his curveballing ace in 1973. "He had to use cunning and finesse because his fastball was more than just a little bit short. It worked in college but then he had to do the same thing there (major leagues), and it didn't work right away."

"But Floyd is a different case," Brock said. "I'm sure he can handle that (major league elevation) right now. "He's had tremendous pressure here in Arizona with the constant press

Planned NBA college draft hurts Olympic cage team

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's National Basketball Association draft had a great effect on last week's United States Olympic basketball trials.

Robert Parish of Centenary and Leon Douglas of Alabama, both certain first-round choices in the NBA draft, pulled out of the trials because they feared damaging their chances at pro contracts. They felt an injury or bad showing during the trials or Games could have been devastating.

But two other sure first-round picks, All Americans Scott May of Indiana and Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame, tried out and made the Olympic team with no concern about the draft.

"I'm not here to impress the pros,"

said May, college basketball's player of the year. "My value won't change. What does the Olympics decide compared to what I've done for the last four years?"

Dantley, who did not withdraw his name from the hardship draft list, agreed.

"I know a lot of guys dropped out because they didn't want to get hurt," he said. "But you don't play the same here as you do during the season. There's much more of a team concept."

Others expected to go early in the draft but missing from the Olympic trials were UCLA teammates Richard Washington and Marques Johnson, both hardship cases, and guard John Lucas of Maryland.

The hardship players had until 5 p.m. EDT Monday to withdraw their names from draft consideration. Among those who pulled back and decided to remain in college were Bo Ellis of Marquette, Bernard King of Tennessee, Tree Rollins of Clemson, and Rickey Green of Michigan.

Houston owned the first choice in today's draft, acquiring it from Atlanta Monday along with center Dwight Jones in exchange for center Joe Meriweather, guard Gus Bailey and the Rockets' first-round pick.

Money an object in ABA-NBA cage linkup

NEW YORK (AP) — Owners of four American Basketball Association franchises say they are willing to pay the price, steep though it may be, to join the National Basketball Association and end the often heated, nine-year-old rivalry of the two pro leagues.

Heads of the ABA's Denver, New York, Indiana and San Antonio franchises have decided that if they get the opportunity, they will agree to an initiation fee of $4.5 million apiece to join the NBA.

But that $4.5 million is just the beginning. High ABA sources estimate that it could cost a franchise anywhere from $6.5 million to $8 million to get into the NBA. And for the New York Nets, who would almost certainly have to pay a territorial indemnity to the NBA's New York Knicks, it could run as high as $12 million.

For the owners of the two other ABA franchises, Kentucky and St. Louis, those figures were simply too high.

Those two clubs have agreed to bow out of the picture on one condition — that the remaining four ABA teams buy out their franchises. It was not clear whether the other clubs had agreed to do so at their meeting in Chicago which ended Monday, although if that were the only thing holding up a merger they undoubtedly would.

Such action would remove one major stumbling block to consolidation of the rival leagues. Though no formal offer was made, the NBA's expansion committee, at an interleague meeting May 28, laid the groundwork for future negotiation by suggesting that the senior circuit might be willing to accept four ABA teams at $4.5 million per.

The immediate problem was that the ABA had six clubs — what to do about the other two?

That has apparently been resolved by the cost factor.

The reason Kentucky — and the owners of the St. Louis club, which had been slated to be moved to Utah — declined is money.

Bengals unload Henson, Klaban, Cousino

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals traded linebacker Brad Cousino, runningback Champ Henson and rookie placekicker Tom Klaban, from Ohio State, to the Chicago Bears for undisclosed draft choices.

Bengals Assistant General Manager Mike Brown said it was simply a matter of "trying to put these players in a place where they have a better opportunity than they have here."

Klaban, a Cincinnati who was OSU's regular placekicker for three years, apparently lost out to rookie placekicker Chris Bahr during the recent rookie camp. Cincinnati also has veteran kicker Dave Green.

Cousino, 5-foot-11, 210 pounds made it with Cincinnati as a free agent but was assigned mainly to kicking teams.

Henson, a fourth round draft choice last season was cut by the Minnesota Vikings and picked up by the Bengals just before the start of last season. The former Ohio State fullback carried the ball 11 times for 38 yards.

Golfer Rick Acton was a southpaw pitcher for the University of Washington. His baseball career ended when he tore tendons in his elbow against UCLA.

YES!

CHRYSLER

Plymouth

*Base sticker price is comparison of 4-door models, effective 10-3-75.

Is Volaré economical?
YES!

YES!

In fact, the four-door sedan is the roomiest car in its class. And the Volaré Wagon is the roomiest small wagon you can buy!

Pieces About People Living On The 'Edges'

EDGES. By Ray Raphael. Knopf, 225 Pages. $7.95.

Ray Raphael has a great love for the open, uncrowded land and for the people who inhabit it. But that kind of land is shrinking in size daily and Raphael is deeply concerned by this. Not only by the reduction in open space but also by the gradual fading out of the life-styles of the people who live in the open spaces.

These Raphael calls "the people of the Edges" — those on the periphery of modern society who are not yet enveloped by the Metropolis. They hold one foot in the present, but the other foot is elsewhere; perhaps it is in the past — or somewhere outside of time.

The various pieces that make up "Edges" deal primarily with these people: what their lives were like before "civilization" drew so near and what they are like now that it is so close. They deal both with the older and younger generations: the old who were there from the beginning and the newly arrived, disillusioned young who came to the Edges in hope of escaping that which was slowly advancing upon their hoped-for retreat.

Raphael writes very well and the stories he relates are told pithily. While he sometimes likes to pause and linger verbally as he describes some back-country delight, he can be forgiven this since his descriptions usually are well written and what he has to say is quite to the point.

There are times, however, when Raphael does get carried away by it all and what he has to say appears more idealistic than realistic, but this happens rarely and does little to impede the progress of his over-all narrative.

The bidding:

Opening lead — six of hearts.

It is sometimes necessary to make an unusual play in order to accomplish a particular purpose.

Let's assume you're in three notrump and West leads a heart. It seems perfectly normal to win East's nine with the queen and lead the jack of diamonds, hoping to find West with the queen and so assure the contract. In the actual deal, if you led the jack and finessed, you would soon find yourself going down one after East took the queen and returned a heart.

But the fact is that if West has the queen of diamonds you can make the contract by playing the hand in an entirely different way — and at the same time probably make the contract if East has the queen of diamonds.

You have to make a hair-raising play to accomplish your purpose, but it is nonetheless a very sound play. All you have to do is lead a club to the queen at trick two and return a low diamond from dummy!

It is true that in the actual deal East can defeat you by playing the queen of diamonds instead of the deuce, but how many players do you know who would make that play? East would almost surely follow low if he held the Q-x, Q-x-x or Q-x-x-x of diamonds, and after he played low in these cases you would have the contract all wrapped up.

Of course, it's been drilled into all of us that, with the diamond combination shown in this deal, one should always initiate the suit by leading towards the K-10-x-x. But all so-called inflexible rules in bridge should be willingly violated when the appropriate occasion arises, and there is no doubt that this deal is one of those occasions.

THE BETTER HALF By Barnes

Contributions investigated

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. says the Securities and Exchange Commission is considering possible enforcement proceedings over the company's domestic political contributions and what Firestone calls small "questionable or improper" payments made in foreign countries over a 31-month period.

The company said its own investigation of the matter was continuing, and a committee was considering "the extent to which the company should seek reimbursement from its employees for amounts expended by them..."

Richard A. Riley, Firestone president and chief executive officer, said in a report to the SEC and to shareholders that the investigation supervised by an audit committee of three directors had uncovered about $330,000 in domestic political contributions and an unspecified amount of foreign payments made from November 1970 through May 1973.

Recipients and countries involved weren't identified.

Painter Howard Chandler Christy was born in 1873 in Morgan County, Ohio.

Seems like every four years some people feel the compulsion to get actively involved in politics — that is to the extent that they get in a tizzy working for a presidential candidate who, in most cases, they had never heard of a few months before. It also seems that the condition corrects itself by mid-November and the patient shows no signs of having been a wild-eyed political activist just a few weeks before.

There was a guy named George Something-or-other who said, a few years ago, that there wasn't a dime's worth of difference among the candidates. How true! Yet otherwise intelligent people get all worked up over the presidential race when the real action is going on in the Congressional races throughout the country. And many people who have strong feelings for or against certain congressmen haven't the foggiest idea of how the man voted on any issue. They don't even know how to find out. Now there's where we can help you. We have, in our shop, an index of the voting record of each congressman, house and senate, that you can buy for 30c. Are you curious about how Wayne Hays voted on certain issues? Do you agree with Mr. Harsha's vote? From my viewpoint Mr. Harsha has been voting right only about 20 per cent of the time recently. Perhaps you should check how he's been voting to spend your money. For only 30c you can come in and get the latest voting index which lists all congressmen and how they voted on key issues. Many people come in and get the latest index as soon as a new one comes out.

A few years ago one of the most brilliant reporters in the country was covering the congressional scene in Washington, and I always followed his reports with interest since I respect him as a man of character and integrity. That man is Reed A. Benson. Reed's dad is Ezra Taft Benson, Secretary of Agriculture in the Eisenhower cabinet. Reed Benson will be the speaker at the Middle School Auditorium, Tuesday, June 15. The subject is one of the most important factors in our American way of life: Family Unity. May I urge you to go see the film and hear Mr. Benson's message.

East sunny for 2nd day

By The Associated Press

A large high pressure zone over much of the East kept cloudiness to a minimum today. Elsewhere there were scattered showers and thunderstorms.

There was rain in southern Florida, southeast and northwest Texas, New Mexico, southeast Colorado, northern Minnesota and upper Michigan and in the Pacific Northwest into northern Nevada and Montana.

Unseasonably warm weather continued in Utah as temperatures in the 50s and 60s were predicted for the nation, except for some in the 70s in Florida and Arizona and a few in the 40s from the northern Rocky Mountain region through the Pacific Northwest.

Sunny skies with temperatures in the 80s were expected for the primary elections in New Jersey and Ohio. In California, the election was to be held under mostly sunny skies. There was a chance of rain in the northern Sierra Nevada mountains.
